Clears Path for Senate Embargo Debate

COMMITTEE TO SEND BILL TO FLOOR TODAY

Foes of Cash and Carry Arms Sales Agree to Pass Up Conference Discussion.

OPEN ARGUMENTS MONDAY

Pittman, Calling for Repeal, Says Bill Bulwark for 'Real Neutrality.'

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The administration's substitute for the U. S. arms embargo—a cash-and-carry neutrality bill—cleared its first congressional hurdle today when the senate foreign relations committee voted to favorably report the legislation to the senate for debate.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Senate legislative barriers dropped today to speed debate on President Roosevelt's cash-and-carry bill repealing the neutrality act arms embargo.

Parliamentary avenues were cleared for a senate foreign relations committee session, called this morning, to report the measure favorably and send it to the floor so debate can get under way on Monday. Foes of the bill said they would raise no objection to an immediate committee report and were ready to fight it out in the senate chamber.

Pittman Airs Views.

The vital foreign policy legislation came up for committee action with a ringing endorsement from the administration's neutrality spokesman in congress. Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Pittman. He told a radio audience last night that cash-and-carry neutrality will keep the United States out of war.

Pittman challenged opposition arguments that the proposed bill would "repeal American neutrality." He condemned existing law and its embargo as unneutral. Present law, he said, permits a course similar to that which drew this country into the World war.

"The proposed substitute, which I believe will become law," said Pittman, "greatly strengthens our neutrality law all along the line. . . . In other words, we have put teeth in our proposed neutrality law. . . ."

Pittman charged that ignorance and "false," vicious propaganda" have led many to believe that the administration bill weakened the United States' neutrality position. He hammered home again and again his belief that the proposed law would prove a bulwark for peace and "real American neutrality."

"Today," he promised the people, "we intend to enact a law that will absolutely prohibit American vessels from engaging in any character of trade or commerce with belligerents. With regard to that provision the president has no discretion or control. . . ."

With this bill a law, he concluded, American seamen and American-owned commodities cannot be exposed to submarines of belligerent nations.

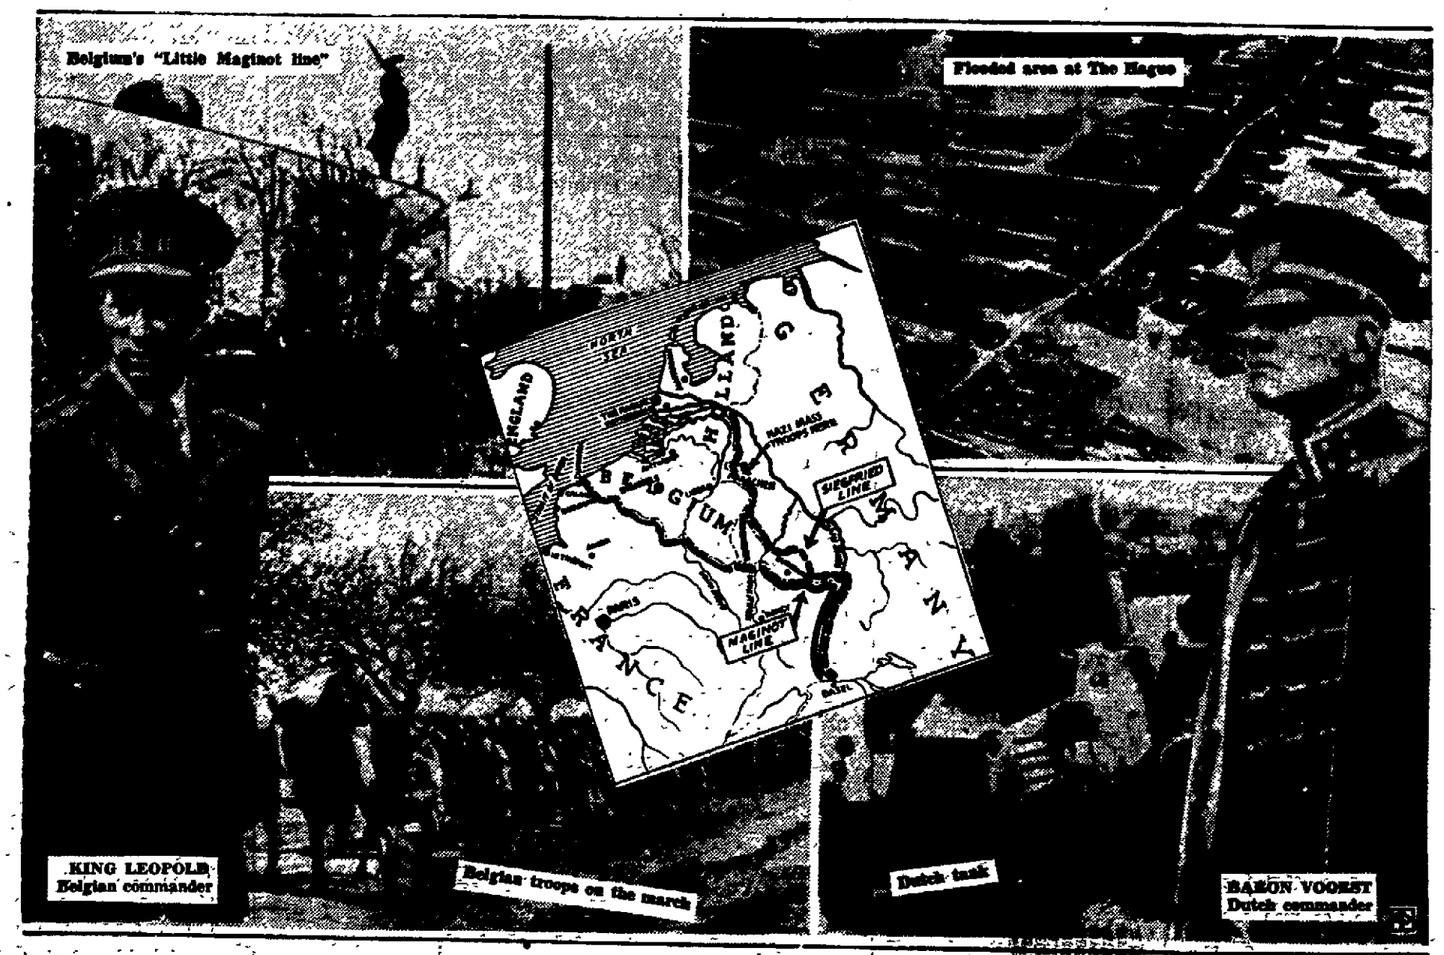
Bargains, Ideal Weather Attract Thrifty Shoppers

Thrifty shoppers of Mansfield and vicinity took advantage of an ideal combination today—perfect fall weather and real bargains—which ushered in the annual Dollar Days.

Today, tomorrow and Saturday, Dollar Days are expected to attract throngs of shoppers to the downtown district. Dollar Days are a part of Fall Value week which got under way Monday.

Ribbons have been awarded displays in the hobby show which is being held in connection with Fall Value week. The judges were members of the Marion Hobby club. The displays will remain in store windows through Monday. Blue ribbons mean a "superior" rating; red ribbons, "good;" and green ribbons indicate "honorable mention."

Netherlands, Holland Ready—If Invasion Comes



If the German high command decides to try a quick thrust through The Netherlands (Holland) and Belgium they may be blocked, at least temporarily, by flood waters in the lowlands of Holland and by Belgium's "Little Maginot line" series of fortifications. Holland has indicated it would cut its famous dikes, in event of invasion, and flood its own country, greatly impeding any enemy troop movements. The "Little Maginot line" is expected to prove, when and if given the test of war, a far more effective defense against attack than were the isolated fortifications which were blasted to pieces by German siege guns in August, 1914.

Soviets, Nazis Chart Eastern Europe's Future

Estonia Wonders What Price Russians Will Demand For Sinking Vessel As Stalin, German Minister Confer In Secret Kremlin Conversations.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(UP)—The radio reported today that a second submarine attack on a Soviet vessel was made at 2 a. m. when the steamer Pioneer was wrecked near the Estonian coast.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—The ultimate fate of Estonia and other nations on the Baltic together with the whole of eastern Europe and perhaps the world was weighed by the statesmen of Soviet Russia and Germany in secret conversations in the Kremlin today.

Up to a late hour this afternoon the conferees had not allowed a word to leak out concerning the real nature of their talks.

Speculation still ran high as to whether and to what extent Estonia might be held responsible for the sinking of the Russian freighter Metallist with the loss of five lives in Estonian waters yesterday.

Some observers predicted the incident would give Soviet Russia an excuse to seize control of Estonia's coastline, by diplomatic agreement or otherwise, but others felt that the Estonian problem was merely a minor issue in the far-reaching consultations launched by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop immediately upon his arrival in Moscow yesterday.

A brief communique issued at noon afforded no real enlightenment on the progress of the conversations.

"Yesterday's Russo-German discussions," the statement said, "dealt with questions relating to events in Poland."

Solution of the problems confronting Germany, Russia and the Baltic and Balkan states is not nearly so cut and dried in advance as was the Russo-German nonaggression pact on Von Ribbentrop's first visit here, it was indicated today.

Von Ribbentrop, Josef Stalin and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov met in the Kremlin again today, although their initial conversation of five and a half hours did not break up until the early hours of this morning.

Observers felt that the length of the talks showed that all the questions had not been discussed and agreed upon previously.

The first communique merely said that the Russo-German delegates talked over questions connected with developments in Poland.

Count Friedrich Von Der Schulenberg, German ambassador to Moscow, and Alexander Shkhartzev, Soviet ambassador to Berlin, attended the night conversations.

Cooling his heels while the major diplomats talked, was Karl Selter, Estonian foreign minister.

He was believed by Soviet quarters to be ready to capitulate to Russian demands for port concessions in Tallinn, although he denied Russian press charges that Estonian ports were being used as foreign submarine bases.

Moscow, all Estonian denials to the contrary, continued to accuse the Baltic state of permitting use of Estonian ports for such purposes.

COLD WEATHER SLOWS FIGHTING

Epidemic of Grippe Causes Suffering Among Troops; French Claim Victory.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—A wave of unseasonably cold weather gripped the Allied and German armies on the western front today, slowing up operations to an appreciable degree and bringing in its wake a wholesale outbreak of grippe.

Both sides were compelled to send numerous victims of the ailment back of the lines as bitter autumn winds whipped through the Vosges and the lower areas around Saarbruecken.

A German attack west of Saarbruecken mentioned in today's official communique was, it was learned, merely a minor sorties by a German patrol which was annihilated by French artillery. The communique read:

"The night was calm on the whole.

"An enemy attack west of Saarbruecken failed.

Explosion Hits Munitions Plant in Britain.

LONDON—(AP)—The ministry of supply announced that 15 persons were killed today by an explosion in a munitions factory somewhere in the north of Britain.

A communique issued by the ministry of information said:

"The Ministry of Supply regrets to announce that at one of the northern explosive factories an explosion took place this afternoon involving the loss as far as can be ascertained of 15 lives."

Four persons were also injured.

The material damage will not seriously interfere with production, the communique said.

British Outline Stern Terms for End of War

Abolishment of Naziism, Restoration of Polish, Czechoslovak Independence Top Conditions For Negotiation.

By CHARLES A. SMITH, INS Staff Correspondent.

LONDON—The end of Naziism in its entirety, from Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler down to the lowliest brownshirt bureaucrat, the restitution of Polish and Czechoslovak independence and definite proof that German has renounced all aggression—economic and military—were set forth as Great Britain's only peace terms today.

To this correspondent, authoritative quarters announced their flat rejection in advance of any dynamic "peace offers" that may be framed by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop during his current talks with the Russians in Moscow.

It is far more than Adolf Hitler, the man, that France and Britain are warring to crush—it is Hitlerism, the whole Nazi ideology and structure, that the Allies are determined to obliterate before a new peace can be arranged.

Well-informed quarters made this clear today when they said that peace proposals, whether red, brown, black, or mixed, will not have the slightest effect on resolution of the Allies to continue the war so long as Hitler or his Nazi colleagues and disciples control Germany.

Calling Hitler-ism by a different name, by replacing Hitler with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, is extremely unlikely to bring Europe any nearer peace, according to authoritative quarters.

Thief Enters City Building, Takes $38 From Worker's Billfold.

Police were wondering today who had the nerve to enter the city building and steal $38—practically under their very eyes.

Reno Watson, colored custodian, told officers yesterday that his billfold containing $38 was taken from his trousers hanging in a stock room on the first floor. The theft, he said, occurred Tuesday between 4 p. m. and 7 p. m. while he was in another part of the building. The room, adjacent to the detective bureau, was unlocked.

DOOMED BY JURY

Florida Girl's Slayer Hears Death Sentence Today.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(U.P.)—Thomas McBride Cochran, 29, in and out of trouble with the law for offenses against women since he was 16, hears himself sentenced to death today.

A jury convicted him last night of murdering Frances Ruth Dunn, 17, a Miami high school girl. He kidnaped Miss Dunn and Jean Bolton, 17, her school mate, August 7, took them to a swamp, attacked them, and killed Miss Dunn.

The jury deliberated six hours and found him guilty of first degree murder. Its failure to recommend leniency made the death sentence mandatory. Judge C. E. Chillingth said he would sentence him today.

War Bulletins

BERLIN — (AP) — Adolf Hitler, after a two-day stay, left Berlin today for an unannounced destination, a government spokesman said. Some quarters believed the fuehrer had gone either to the western front or to the Wilhelmshaven naval base with Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command.

STAVANGER, Norway — (AP) —The 3,378-ton Swedish freighter, with a crew of 29, was sunk today off the Norwegian coast. It was reported the boat was torpedoed. Norwegian torpedo boats went to the rescue. It was not reported whether there were any casualties.

BERLIN — (INS) — An offer of surrender was received today from the commander of the Modlin fortress north of Warsaw, virtually the last stronghold in Poland to resist German attack, it was announced in Berlin today.

LONDON — (INS) — Further German prisoners described as "U-boat men" have arrived at a British internment camp in the northern industrial area, the British ministry of information announced today.

'Isolationists' Lead 7 To 1 In Today's Balloting In Poll

Supporters of the present neutrality law and its embargo on war materials won their biggest advantage in today's balloting in The News-Journal neutrality poll.

Of the 144 votes cast today, 126 were for retention of the present embargo while 18 favored a repeal of this clause and the substitution of the cash-and-carry proposal now before congress, a ratio of exactly 7 to 1.

The latest rush of votes to keep the embargo pushed the "isolationists" advantage in the poll to 78 per cent as compared with 75 per cent yesterday.

The total number of votes cast to date is 698, with 548 for the arms embargo and 150 for lifting it.

There is still time to express your views on this problem which confronts the nation's congress, and you can do so by voting on the ballot on page 5 to today's paper, and mailing it to the Neutrality Editor, News-Journal.

BLACK REFUSED WRIT BY COURT

Agrees to Submit Records of Father's Estate After His Petition's Rejected.

Refused a writ of habeas corpus by the Fifth district appeals court in Canton late yesterday, Robert B. Black, a director of the Ohio Brass company, today had agreed to submit records of the estate of his father, the late Frank B. Black, as evidence in a mandamus suit involving the estate.

Black was cited for contempt last Friday by H. M. Rust, a notary, after he declined to present the records at the taking of depositions for a hearing on the mandamus case. Rust was presiding during the taking of the depositions.

Following the appeal court's action yesterday, counsel in the case said they had agreed that Black would remain at liberty under $500 bond on the condition that he produces the records. He is scheduled to submit them to Rust at 10 a. m. Friday at Rust's office.

At yesterday's hearing, Black was represented by Atty. W. M. Weldon, Mansfield, and Luther Day, Cleveland. It was on the ad-

But on her way home with Earl Burrows, a friend, her car was stopped by two highway robbers who forced Miss Keeper, at pistol's point, to hand over every cent of her prize.

GERMANY CLAIMS - - -

Second British Ship Bombed Off Scotland; Warplane Shot Down

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The supreme army command, announcing for the second day a success for Germany's air force against Britain's naval might, reported today a British heavy cruiser had been bombed off the east coast of Scotland.

(A spokesman for the admiralty in London declared this was "all poppycock.")

At the same time the command foreshadowed the end of the campaign in Poland with the news that the fortress of Modlin, 15 miles northwest of Warsaw, had offered to surrender following the capitulation of the Polish capital.

In describing aerial activity yesterday, the command's communique said:

"Heavy British cruiser was successfully attacked off the Isle of May (at the mouth of the Firth of Forth) by one air force fighting unit. One 250-kilo (550-pound) bomb hit the prow."

The announcement failed to assess the damage, but added:

"Of the heavy British naval

SILENCE: Tale of Destruction Told, Warsaw Radio Shuts Down

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST—Except for strange, sputtered signals, the wavelength of the Warsaw radio station was silent today.

Apparently the station's epic tale was told, ended on the same defiant note it struck during the 20 days it told the outside world of German siege.

Its last message, broadcast at 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST) yesterday, was a new challenge to the Nazi besiegers:

"We will never give in while one of us is alive."

But last night the Polish Telegraph agency carried a dispatch, dated Warsaw, which indicated that defense of the Polish capital had been abandoned.

German announcements said the city had capitulated unconditionally and would surrender formally tomorrow.

From the picture painted by the radio announcers and by a Polish army flier who escaped through a barrage of German shells, Warsaw gave up only after it had become a city of ruin and tragedy.

The flier, Lieut. Col. Mateus Izycki, who fled out of Poland last Monday, told of an ever-deepening black pall of smoke over Warsaw.

In a husky voice that dropped to a whisper, he told of starvation, of incessant rumblings of siege guns, of civilians creeping from cellars during lulls in artillery fire and between air raids to bury their dead in parks and public places.

"From the air the city is a horrible sight," he said. "Hardly a building is intact.

"The city is ringed by six divisions of German soldiers whose artillery is pouring in shells unceasingly, aided by an average of 200 raiding planes a day.

"There's a no-man's land strewn with dead men, women and horses . . . there's some life in the streets, for the city must live, but old people and children never leave their cellar refuges."

NOW MORE THAN EVER BEFORE...

You Get Your Money's Worth When You Build!

Just look at the difference between the house of today and the house of eleven years ago! Today's home is more attractive—it better fits your idea of what your home ought to look like. But its beauty is not all on the exterior . . . interiors have been made more beautiful with the development of new materials for interior decoration.

Another difference is that the home you build today is roomier and more cheerful. New designs do away with waste space . . . eliminate dark, damp corners . . . make your home more cheerful both inside and out.

How much of a bargain today's home is you can judge from the fact that $7,200 in 1928 bought a home that didn't stay warm in winter and a house that was hardly ever cool in the summer. Your house of yesterday was subject to drafts and leaks. Windows let rain in or couldn't be budged. Today all that is changed. For $550 less you buy a greater number of rooms that are larger sized. Drafts and leaks are eliminated. New insulation materials cut fuel bills in winter, keep homes cool in summer. Windows work. Bargain? To be sure.

Research has improved the quality of the paint on the outside of your home and your painted and wallpaper interiors have greater beauty, more variety and longer life than those of 10 years ago. Bricks and cement blocks that go into your foundation stand more strain and insulate better than the same products which 10 years ago cost 20 to 33 per cent more.

On top of all this, builders, contractors, financial institutions and the government have made it much easier to buy a home—now you can pay for a home like rent. Actually you pay less for financing because rates are lower.

Look into how easily a home may be built today. You'll be amazed at the amount of home your building dollar will buy. There are homes of all styles and prices—virtually one to fit any pocketbook. You've always wanted a home, why not buy one today?

Tub Baths Are Good Relaxation

You can find in the bath what you may not be able to find elsewhere in a busy active day, and that is refreshment and relaxation. The family can't ask you to hunt for misplaced articles, you can't go to the telephone; for the time being you are isolated. In this world of general delirium, that is a treat and a pleasure.

The cold shower picks one up, but the clean, fresh look comes only through scrubbing with warm soap suds and a brush. We cannot expect to be healthy or to have good complexions without vigorous cleansings of the skin. Sebaceous pores are continually sending forth oil, sweat glands deposit chemicals on the epidermis, dust is picked up from the atmosphere and from clothing. You can't get rid of cutaneous rubbish without scouring. And let me tell you this, my children; you can spot the scrubbers by good skin coloring, sparkling eyes, an appearance of good grooming. The girls who jump into the tub or under the shower and are out in a minute always look a bit dingy.

In treatment of acne, the daily bath, with a ten minute soaking, will prove beneficial. It assists the skin to carry on its work of eliminating poisons, removes bacteria that is present on even the healthiest hide. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise. It's good, too, for restlessness, nerves, fatigue.

* * *

There are skins that have a phobia against soap suds. After even the briefest contact they set up an almost unbearable itching, or the flesh reddens in spots. This trouble is not always confined to cold weather, but may continue throughout the year. One faces a real problem. There is a way out of this difficulty.

Get a length of gauze four inches wide, make some bath bags, fill them with ordinary oatmeal. Fill the tub with warm water, toss in one of the bags, wait for ten minutes or until the water is clouded with the starchy contents of the meal. Use the blandest soap, no more than is necessary to acquire a clean skin surface. Avoid the bath brush. Use a damask wash cloth instead of the usual one of turkish toweling.

Have the water barely warm. Hot water is inclined to excite the capillaries close to the surface of the skin and to bring about a feverish condition of the cuticle.

Brisk friction, beneficial in normal cases, won't do for the sensitive skin. Dry with gentle pats. Cover the body surface with borated talcum or a refreshing bath powder. Sometimes it is advisable to use a bath oil. One must experiment.

Srong soaps create a mild dermatitis, so make a careful choice. Certain fabrics vex the skin; some individuals cannot wear rayon undies. Cotton may be more comfortable than silk. And there is the matter of the temperature of the bath room. If it is colder than the water, the skin may protest in the form of gooseflesh, which is anything but pretty.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"You're wise not to ask questions," he said. "You'll learn all the more quickly what the Chief is planning to do. Now, here's the dope."

He paused, and I felt as if I were literally holding my breath.

"The Chief's taking his time," he said, "but when he gets through, there won't be a crack through which Leslie can crawl.

"The first thing he's doing is to see that a cordon of men is thrown around the whole place. The state troopers are going to co-operate with him—one of their leaders was one of the men who went scurrying away from here just now—and they're going to keep watch night and day. They have a series of signals that ought to be most effective in trapping our gifted Jackie if he tries to get away by land. Then the Chief's providing for swift, armed motorboats to patrol the coast line of the place, and for two airplanes, one a sea plane, which can trail and ground him if he tries to escape by air.

"The utmost precautions are being taken so that Leslie will have no suspicion of what is afoot until the times comes to close in on him. The men forming the cordon are posing as hunters and surveyors, and, of course, they are not on the land of the place he has rented, but on that bordering upon it. So we hope he will not guess that he is being trailed until the time comes to close in on him. Then it will not matter, except that it probably will be a sanguinary engagement, for Leslie is a half-crazed, desperate man, and the men under him are of the same type."

"That's enough for that," my father said a bit dictatorially. "We have something more important to discuss. But first, is there anything you wish to ask me?"

"Oh! yes, Father, there is," I stammered, and then told him of Philip Veritzen's plan to bring the cast of my play to the farm for rehearsals.

"I told him, Father," I said, "that under no circumstances would you permit Mary to go over to the hotel for daily rehearsals."

"Mary is not to leave the farm house or its immediate grounds until Jack Leslie is captured," my father said. "But on most days there can be no possible objection to the players coming here, providing they all come in one vehicle, like a station wagon or bus, and come and go at the same hours each day, so we can plan for guards accordingly. But there may be days when they cannot come at all. Is Mr. Veritzen prepared to accept those limitations?"

"Oh! yes," I assured him, "and he wishes to know whether the forenoon or the afternoon will be the more acceptable to you."

"The forenoon," my father decided at once. "But not before nine o'clock."

"I am sure he would not wish to come before nine," I said.

"Then," he decided, "tell him he may bring them here. And now we must plan about your trip back to New York to see about Richard."

Wants Husband Back Again

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a married woman with two small children—6 and 8 years old. My husband got a divorce by false accusations, saying that I misbehaved while he was away on a business trip, which of course was not true.

I still care a great deal for him and as I don't like to have the children grow up without a father's influence, I should like very much to get him back. My relations and my friends say that I should be glad to be rid of a man who has treated me so cruelly, but in spite of everything I still love him. It was only bad influences and drink that led him away in the first place. Do you know of any way I can get him to return to us? The little boy of 8 talks about him a great deal and we all want him to come home.

PATIENT.

Your signature explains your attitude toward your husband, my dear, and there is nothing more to be said about it. When a woman really wants back a man who has treated her so badly, it's no one's business but her own. You and the children might appeal to him and say that you still love him and would welcome him back. If he hasn't married in the meantime, he may be willing to come back. Weak men, who rush away from wife and children, under the influence of liquor and unscrupulous friends, often discover their mistake and, like the wandering cat, are glad to get back to the fireside again.

* * *

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The girl I'm going with is 18 years old. Although she never refuses me a date she's always bragging about dates she's had with other boys, which I know she's never had, and she acts as if she's doing me a favor in going out with me. If we do meet other boys, she's always nicer to them than to me. Maybe I don't understand her, or do you think she's just the frivolous type of girl?

WONDERING.

"Would-be vamp" more nearly expresses her type, than the word "frivolous." A good many young ladies are like this one, and try to paint their innocent young lives more scarlet than their lipsticks.

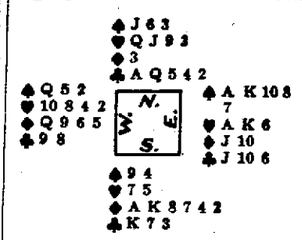
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DUPLICATE TEACHES

THERE is not a rubber bridge player in the land whose rubber game would not be strengthened by a bit of duplicate tournament experience. He will be helped very definitely on many close questions, because of his having seen how hands worked out when played in different contracts. In one phase of bridge, duplicate addicts as a body completely outclass rubber players of otherwise equal skill—the treatment of deals on which neither side can make a game and the objective is to chisel the result which is very slightly better than some other result. In the long run, these deals add up to points in rubber bridge just as they produce match points in duplicate.



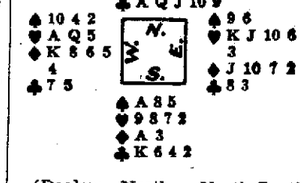
(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable).

Two tables of a duplicate game produced the same early bidding on this deal. South bid 1-Diamond, North 2-Clubs, East 2-Spades, South 3-Diamonds, North 3-Hearts to make clear that he had five clubs and only four hearts, then East 3-Spades. At the table where an experienced duplicate performer sat South, this was passed. At the other, South bid 4-Clubs, which East doubled.

Against East's spades, the defenders took two tricks in each minor, then South led a heart. East won with the A, ruffed a club, and led the diamond Q. Had North discarded, East could have thrown his losing heart. North ruffed with the 3, East overruffing with the 7. The spade A was won, dummy's spade Q taken, and the diamond 9 furnished a heart discard, assuring the contract worth 90 tricks plus 50 bonus.

At 4-Clubs, East set the contract promptly with two tricks in each major, for a score of 200, winning the deal for his side. This also would have been a better result at rubber bridge, 200 above the line being more valuable than 90 below it.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Can you make 6-Spades on this deal against a lead of the spade 9?

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Sept. 29.

A RATHER dubious and difficult day is indicated by both lunar and mutual aspects of important planets. This doubtful situation will be encountered in both business and private affairs, with the latter particularly under baneful portent. Deception, intrigue or other forms of sinister undercurrents call for utmost discretion and wariness. Sign all writings with precaution, and guard the speech. It is possible the situation may be relieved by a surprising friendly intervention.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which their own discreet, clever and restrained conduct may be instrumental in averting rather compromising and disagreeable experiences. This treacherous and sinister menace may affect business as well as intimate relations, so be extremely cautious with speech and writings, and shun tricky and suspicious entanglements. A surprising friend may appear to help out in a doubtful moment; it might be a romantic stranger.

A child born on this day may have some debatable characteristics, as its love of indulgence, luxury and "the easiest way" may involve it in tricky or suspicious circumstances. It may be artistic, refined and congenial.

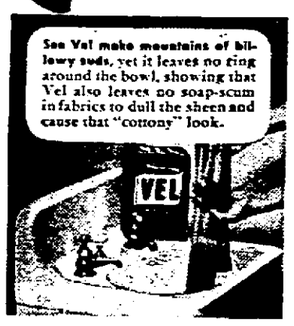
STOCKINGS KEEP COLOR LONGER

with this new hard-water suds!

A SERIOUS CAUSE of faded stockings now found to be the alkali in soap suds. So suds your stockings with Vel, marvelous new hard-water suds made by Colgate for fine fabrics. Vel is not a soap. Contains no alkali to fade the delicate color of stockings. Makes big suds in cold water, thus ideal for all fine fabrics.



See Vel make mountains of billowy suds, yet it leaves no ring around the bowl, showing that Vel also leaves no soap-scum in fabrics to dull the sheen and cause that "cottony" look.
VEL

Ideal for all fine fabrics because Vel washes things cleaner and newer looking. Thus they last longer and keep their silky luster.

NOW see stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color, amazingly longer. See woolens and underwear regain bride-like freshness and color! Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle!

Results are startling because science has found a way to make a wonderful new suds, called Vel, that contains no alkali to fade colors. And Vel can't form ruinous soap-scum to cause that "cottony" look in fine fabrics.

You can feel this slippery, slimy scum in soap suds. But these amazing new Vel suds feel soft and pure.

That's because Vel is not a soap. It's a special new hard-water suds perfected by Colgate. It makes as much as 5 times more suds than expensive soap flakes in hardest water. And it makes hardest water act soft as rainwater.

Moreover Vel makes abundant suds in cold water—so Vel is ideal for fine fabrics.

You can see why Vel is better than the finest soap-flakes for fine fabrics, because Vel does not form a ring of soap-scum around the bowl. That proves Vel can't leave ruinous soap-scum in your stockings, underwear and woolens, to give dainty things that "cottony" look, and because Vel contains no alkali, it helps colors keep fresh much longer.

So easy on hands, too, because Vel is neutral—contains no acid, no alkali to irritate the skin.

It even outlasts pure soap 2 to 1 in hardest water. Buy Vel today at grocers. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

ELIZABETH ALBERS, F. R. O'BRIEN WED

Nuptial Vows Exchanged Early Today at Altar of St. Peter's Catholic Church; Leave for Michigan Honeymoon Trip.

AT 9:30 O'CLOCK this morning Miss Julia Elizabeth Albers became the bride of Francis Russell O'Brien before the altar of St. Peter's Catholic church. Msgr. R. C. Goebel read the nuptial mass.

Raymond E. Baum played a 15-minute organ recital before the service, which included "Elegia," by Oreste Ravanello, and "Adagio Movement From the Third Sonata In C Minor" by Alex Guilmant. The wedding processional march was Guilmant's "Grand Triumphal Chorus." The music of the mass included "O'Sanctissima" and Guilmant's "Melody In G," played by Mr. Baum, and the Senior Boys' choir sang the ancient Gregorian music of the church. The recessional march was Kinder's "Joccatta In D."

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Albers, 30 Lexington avenue, was escorted to the altar by her father. The chancel of the church was banked with palms and ferns. Two beauty baskets of white chrysanthemums and pompons were placed at the entrance to the sanctuary, and two large jardinieres of yellow chrysanthemums and pompons decorated the altar.

Wears Formal Gown.

The former Miss Albers was attired in a gown of slipper satin in just an off-shade of white for her wedding. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice finished with a sweetheart neckline and bracelet length sleeves. A fan-shaped bustle at the back of the waist extended into a medium length train. The double-tiered fingertip veil of off-white bridal illusion was held in place by a halo cap trimmed in seed pearls and small clusters of waxed orange blossoms and calla-lilies. A feature of the bridal costume was an antique necklace, which belonged to the bride's paternal grandmother and was presented to her by her father at the wedding announcement party. The bride's semi-colonial bouquet was made from white pompons and Killarney roses, and with it she carried a white kid prayer book, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Rosemary O'Brien of Toledo, a cousin of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a mist blue faille taffeta dress made with a long-waisted shirred bodice and very full skirt banded in polka purple velvet ribbon. The gown had a low, square neckline and short puffed sleeves. Miss O'Brien's crownless poke bonnet was of velvet matching the trim on her dress. She carried a semi-colonial bouquet of deep purple cockscomb and Briarcliff roses.

Henry L. Albers and Horace M. Albers, both brothers of the bride, Benton H. Goodenough and Glenn Erdenberger were Mr. O'Brien's attendants. Mr. O'Brien is the son of John Francis O'Brien, 366 West Sixth street.

Breakfast Served.

The couple received their wedding guests in the vestibule of the church immediately following the ceremony. Later this morning a wedding breakfast was served to members of the bridal party and the immediate families at the Susie Janis home on Park avenue west road. The bridal table was centered with a tiered wedding cake surrounded by maidenhair fern and small white pompons. Bouquets of white roses and pompons decorated the other breakfast table. Mrs. Albers appeared wearing a black crepe ensemble with black accessories and a gardenia shoulder corsage. Mrs. O. C. Trukenmiller, a life-long friend of the O'Brien family, was attired in a black crepe dress with silver trim and a corsage of gardenias.

Later today Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien left for a motor trip to northern Michigan, where they will vacation at Lake Avalon for about two weeks. Mrs. O'Brien wore a soft wool dress of dragon fly blue with black accessories for traveling. Her shoulder corsage was of Happy Days roses.

After Oct. 15 the couple will be at home to friends at 391 Glessner avenue. Mrs. O'Brien is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and the Spencerian school in Cleveland. She has been employed as a secretary in the Willis, Willis and Harry S. Black company at the Farmers Bank building. Mr. O'Brien is also a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school. He was graduated from Notre Dame university and received his law degree from Western Reserve university. He is now an attorney-at-law with offices in the Richland Trust building.

The new combine, coached by Earl McMullen, made its debut with a 21 to 0 victory over the Akron O'Neils last Sunday, and returns to action this week-end against the Richwood Merchants

Judging from the style of play they offered Sunday, McMullen's men will do a great amount of passing, and, this tends to make more spectacular football, the Sabbath football-goers should flock to Blue Goose field before the season gets too far along.

A feature of the inaugular engagement was the passing threat that McMullen presented in Al Schwaner and Elmer Dials, and it was their performance which was instrumental in giving the Supplies their big margin of victory.

Virtually all of the players and Coach McMullen are proteges of J. Russell Murphy, and that means that they have a pretty good idea of how this game of football should be played.

Indications point to a sterling battle out on the Mansfield field Sunday as Richwood comes here with an unmarred record The Richwood club has been beaten only once in two years.

Then there's that guy who swears that during the fourth round of the Louis-Pastor fight one of the broadcasters shouted ". . . Louis landed a hard right, but Pastor is standing with both feet well in the air!"

BEST QUARTERBACKS

"THE best quarterbacks are the coaches," declared Look magazine today "Ask John F (Chick) Meehan for 19 years a big-time coach, and a former president of the National Association of Football Coaches 'I called plays from the bench when I was coach,' Chick says 'So did everybody else. None of us coaches took the matter seriously. It was a joke' "

The magazine pictures some prominent coaches as they sat on the sidelines watching their teams in action and cites instances of sideline coaching

One story quoted Tom Thorp's version "of a game between Lehigh and Carnegie Tech, then coached by the late Judge Walter Steffens. Several times the Tech quarterback looked toward the bench, and Steffens would raise one finger or two fingers. The quarterback would not, and Referee Thorp would penalize Tech 15 yards. At the half, Steffens was furious at Thorp.

"'You're crazy,' the Judge told him. 'I'm not signaling plays. That quarterback gets tired and sometimes goes into a sort of coma. We have a system whereby I can tell if he's all right. He has to nod to me once for each finger I raise, so I can tell if he's conscious and can count' "

Pushes Tygers For Cambridge

Snyder Told Host Team Has Heavy Lineup.

Coach Paul Snyder's Tygers are digging in with both feet on the practice field at the high school this week as they prepare for Saturday's invasion of Cambridge.

Their massacre by Massillon is a thing of the past They're looking toward the future, and Saturday they hope to rebound at the expense of the host Cambridge club

Cambridge may not be as tough as many other teams on the schedule, but Snyder is not taking a victory for granted That is the reason why there has not been any let-up in drills this week.

The Cambridge eleven was scouted last week as it defeated Barnesville, 12 to 0

The scouting report shows that Cambridge has a good-sized team, with the line particularly heavy. The backfield is well-balanced. Cambridge did not have a severe test in its opener, and Snyder is not certain how much in the way of trickery it withheld

But with virtually the entire squad in shape for the game, Snyder, apparently has no serious worries if his Tygers show a reversal of form.

Defeat Shaves Margin

Reds Held Scoreless for 2nd Game in Row, Lose 4 to 0; McGee Halts Cincy.

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI — (AP)—There has never, in the century of baseball, been a pitcher who could win a ball game without at least one run on his side, and easy-going Paul Derringer can only hope that he doesn't have to try to be the first today.

The big Kentucky iceberg is the Cincinnati Reds' last hope to clinch their second pennant in the life of the National league without going into a dogfight with the Pittsburgh Pirates or needing the unpredictable co-operation of the Chicago Cubs against the rushing St. Louis Cardinals over the week-end.

* * *

For those Cardinals have battered down the Reds' second pitching line headed by Lee Grissom and they have broken the great Bucky Walters' mastery over them and in that time the Reds have scored not a run. In fact, Fiddler Bill McGee's four-hit 4-0 job yesterday ran the Reds' string of nothing to 24 whole innings, dating back to the second inning of the Tuesday opener, when Billy Myers hit his three-run, game-winning homer.

* * *

Further, the Reds have made their presence known in the second and third games of this prelude to glory by a slight total of eight hits, only two of them for extra bases. They have stood on third base but thrice.

With this in mind, Derringer, who has won 24 and lost seven, must work today, either against Curt Davis, whom the Reds chased with buckshot in the opener, or Max Lanier, the Cards' high-flying rookie from Columbus. Big Paul has beaten the Cards twice this year, lost one and tied one.

And he is in a spot where, holding a shaved margin of 2½ games, The Reds can have the pennant today if they'll only agitate their bats.

Of such agitation there was practically none yesterday. Fiddler Bill gave each batter about half the ball and it either went up or it went down.

The three hardest-hit balls don't even show in the record, for Terry Moore stood in front of Bill Werber's tracer bullet in the first inning, Wally Berger's clout over the left-field fence in the fourth was barely foul, and Enos Slaughter ran like a prairie fire to pull down Ernie Lombardi's drive to right in the ninth.

* * *

The Reds loaded the bases in the third on Walters' single, a low throw by Stu Martin on Werber's double-play bouncer and an intentional walk to Ival Goodman. But two were out and Frank McCormick, who leads the National league in runs batted in with 126, popped with little ado to Don Gutteridge.

After that it was no soap. The Reds never got that close again.

All the time the Cards were picking up what they needed. Singles by Joe Medwick, Terry Moore and Martin produced one run in the second. Mize walked and came in on Padgett's double in the fourth, and Padgett moved to third on Lombardi's low throw trying to pick him off, and then scored on Moore's fly. Finally Moore hit his 16th homer of the year in the ninth.

So it was a droopy crowd of 25,000 that struggled into the street cars.

Third Place Race Also Hot In NL.

ALL baseball fans are more or less spellbound at the moment by the flaming fight between the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals for the National league pennant and a place in the world series.

But it's not one bit hotter than the fuss for third place in the two major leagues. The world series proceeds don't all go to the players on the two championship teams, you know.

In the National league the Chicago Cubs, striving desperately to salvage something from the 1938 honors they lost this year, are locked in a strangle hold with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Cubs clawed their way through two ten-inning games yesterday to nose out the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 and 9-5 and move two percentage points ahead of Brooklyn, which was idle. Today the Dodgers play two games and the Cubs will be idle. So it goes.

In the American league the Cleveland Indians captured both ends of a freak afternoon-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 7-5 to move half a game in front of Chicago. Harry Eisenstat scattered the hits he gave in the afternoon and John Rigney didn't. In the night game the Indians slugged for Bob Feller's 23rd victory, although he had to be removed for a pinch hitter.

Home runs by Pete Fox and Charley Gehringer earned a 7-4 triumph for the Detroit Tigers over the tail-end St. Louis Browns and gave Buck Newsom his 19th pitching decision.

The day's other games were rained out.

Face Madison Friday

'Touchdown Twins' Lead Crestline In Annual Battle With Rams Under Floodlights.

By CHARLES MARTIN

A DETERMINED BAND of Crestline high footballers, fresh from an impressive 20 to 7 triumph over the erstwhile unbeaten Galion high team, will be seeking revenge when they invade Madison high field to meet Coach Al Fendrick's Rams under the arcs at 8 p. m. Friday.

Mentor Merle Hutson's high-geared gridiron machine, led by Phil Ganni and Bob Frye, will be out to even accounts with the Rams who handed them a 26-19 beating at Crestline last fall.

* * *

The Rams, with a 32-7 victory over New London scribbled in the record books, hope to spring an upset Friday—but they face a difficult task in stopping the unbeaten and untied Onondagas.

* * *

In Frye, the Crestline quarterback, Coach Hutson has a ball-packer that ranks with any in this district. Against Galion last week he smashed over three touchdowns and added one extra point He is also a capable left-hand passer.

Ganni makes a splendid running mate for Frye, Fast and shifty, he gives the Crestline team a brilliant broken-field runner who is hard to stop once he gets through the line. Ganni can also handle the passing assignment and is frequently on the receiving end of Frye's bullet-like aerials.

* * *

Crestline, however, is expected to have its hands full in stopping Madison's Doug DeNero, Dave Weimer and company. DeNero, Weimer and Bill Matthes make up a combination that is a threat from any spot on the field, as it demonstrated against Wooster. Both the Rams' touchdowns against the Class A team were scored on long runs with their lateral passing a big factor in making the touchdowns possible.

* * *

* * *

Bellville Plays Freddies; Butler at Home Friday.

SPORTING victories over Centerburg and Granville, Coach Royd Hodges' Bellville high school gridiron juggernaut will attempt to register its third triumph of the season on a foreign field Friday afternoon.

The Blue Jays invade Fredericktown, which opened its season with a 13 to 0 victory over Ashley last week.

The Howard Hamilton-led Bellville club is rated as a top-heavy favorite, but the Freddies are reported to have size, and may offer the Blue Jays a great more trouble than anticipated

Butler, which has yet to score a point let alone a victory, will be host to Mt. Gilead Friday afternoon, and may stage a comeback. The Bulldogs have been showing gradual improvement.

Open Closing Series Today

Indians Eye Third Place Cut In Detroit Battle.

DETROIT — (AP) — The Indians, eyeing $400 apiece in world series bonus money, daubed on their fiercest war paint today for the season's last series—four battles with the fifth-place Tigers.

Two games are scheduled tomorrow, with single clashes Saturday and Sunday.

A pair of victories over Chicago yesterday, one of them Bob Feller's 23rd triumph, put the Redskins back in third place by half a game. The White Sox have three games left to play, all with the hapless St. Louis Browns.

* * *

Players of fourth-place teams usually get just short of $400 and third placers double that amount.

* * *

Steady pitching by Harry Eisenstat gave the Tribe its first decision in the afternoon-night doubleheader, 5 to 2. Sammy Hale wrenched his back in this tilt but contributed a single and a double to the attack before retiring.

The Sox got to Feller for three runs in the seventh inning of the night game and he retired the next inning for a pinch hitter, but received credit for the 7 to 3 victory anyway Mel Harder finished the game. Feller gave up four hits and fanned six, while Harder allowed two hits.

Rams' Captain Suffers Injury on Net Court.

Capt. Bill Heichel may be on the sidelines when the Rams face Crestline at Madison field Friday night, Coach Al Fendrick announced today.

Heichel, who played three years of varsity ball without an injury, suffered a leg hurt when he tripped and fell on a tennis court Sunday, Fendrick said. The injury has not responded to treatment as well as Fendrick hoped.

The Mansfield sophomore squad will seek its third straight victory of the season Friday afternoon when it invades Alliance.

DO YOU WANT ALL-WINTER RADIATOR PROTECTION FOR ONLY 1½?

HERE'S THE WAY many car owners do it. They put in a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone" early in the season for protection against rusting and the sudden cold snaps they know will come.

When it gets really cold, they add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. Six quarts, put in as needed, can protect a car with an average size cooling system (15 quarts) for the entire winter. And six quarts cost only $1.50!

Your car may need a little more or less, depending on radiator capacity and the severity of winter. But "Zerone" will save you real money. Put some in today! Remember, it's only $1.00 a gallon, 25¢ a quart.

These payments are calculated at Household's new reduced rates of 2% monthly on balances up to $300 and 6% yearly on balances over $300 to $500. These rates are less than legal maximum, and are the same to everyone—one price to all. Only borrowers sign—no endorsers on any loan. No credit inquiries of friends or relatives.

SELLING SENDS STOCK LEADERS TO MINUS SIDE

Possibility of German-Russian Peace Move Not Overlooked by Market Traders.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading shares eased into lower ground in today's stock market.

An accumulation of selling orders sent them to the minus side in a moderately fast opening. Later activity had dwindled and losses were registered in fractions to a point or more.

Prominent in the slide were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, International Nickel, Great Northern, Pullman and Johns-Manville.

Utilities made the most valiant effort to hold their heads above water but failed to do it.

Brokers said realization was involved in the downswing and that most of the trading was the work of in-and-outers. The possibility of a German-Russian peace move in the European hostilities, as a result of Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop's visit to Moscow, was not overlooked.

Attention was given the "engineering news-record" report that engineering construction awards for the week ended Sept. 26 were 12 per cent below the total for the corresponding week last year and 31 per cent under the previous period.

That the drop was due largely to a fall in public contracts was indicated by the fact private construction was 64 per cent above last year, but 29 per cent below the preceding week.

B. and O. Reopens Willard Shops, 115 Get Jobs Back

WILLARD—Increased business as a result of the European war has brought the reopening of the Baltimore and Ohio repair shops here, closed since 1929.

Approximately 115 men will be given work and a number of them will be brought here from other points on the system since there are not enough workers in the Willard district to supply the demand.

Reopening of the shops has created a housing problem which the Commercial club has volunteered to help solve. The Y. M. C. A. which serves as a dormitory for railroad workers was filled several days ago and other quarters must be found for the men.

BAND TO SEEK NEW UNIFORMS

Senior High Musicians Hope to Raise Funds to Buy 100 New Suits.

The Senior high school band opens a drive this week to raise money to purchase 100 new uniforms.

J. Merton Holcombe, band leader, said if the movement is successful that bright uniforms to be worn at football games and parades will be obtained. The dark uniforms now being used were purchased about six years ago and due to constant use, some of them have worn out and as a result there are not enough to outfit the 72-piece band, he added.

A bake sale Saturday at the Third Street market is the first project the band will sponsor. Others, including a show, are under consideration.

Band officers elected at a meeting Monday will act as a committee in charge of the projects. The officers are Robert Lehman, president, Todd Strohminger, vice president, Helen Holzmiller, secretary and Jacques Edwards, manager.

New officers of the Girls' drum corps are Ruth Titschinger, president and Geraldine Rhodes, vice president. Bugle corps officers are Ruth Sawyer, president, and Margaret Kurik, vice president. All officers will serve for the first semester only.

A special student cheering section of 300 will feature home football games beginning with the Sandusky game Oct. 21, school officials announced today.

The section is to encourage better cheering on the part of students at the games. It will be seated in the stands on the west side of the field beginning at the 50-yard line and extending south.

Members of this section will hold regular rehearsals in school yells every Thursday after school under direction of the eight cheerleaders.

Neutrals Seek to Maintain Trade Despite War Peril

SEND ENVOYS TO LONDON TO DRAFT POLICY

Action Started After German Subs Destroy Trade Ships, Stop Passenger Boats.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Envoys of European countries which trade with both Great Britain and Germany are coming to London to discuss the situation which has arisen from the British contraband control and Germany's retaliatory blockade of the Baltic, it was disclosed today.

A United Press Copenhagen dispatch said that representatives of Danish commerce and industry would leave for London tomorrow to confer, along with delegates to be sent from other northern nations, with British importers in an effort to maintain trade despite the war.

The action of neutral nations came after the sinking of neutral merchantmen by German submarines and the stopping yesterday of Danish and Swedish passenger ships.

A German torpedo boat stopped the regular Danish overnight steamship between Aalborg and Copenhagen early yesterday and searched it.

Last night a German submarine chaser stopped the Swedish steamship Kronprinsessan Margareta off Goteborg and took off 11 British sailors who had been rescued from the torpedoed trawler Caldew last week. The captain protested vainly.

Most newspapers today accepted the new taxation announced in the house of commons yesterday by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, as the only alternative to inflation.

Income tax, bring people with incomes as low as $15 a week within taxable range; death duties, duties on beer, liquors, wines, sugar, tobacco all were increased. An excess profits tax of 60 per cent was imposed.

The government estimated its expenditures, in the fiscal year which will end next March 31, at a little more than $8,000,000,000 (B).

Drivers Stand In Line As Rush For Licenses Starts

Mansfielders who stood in line last night at the Richland County Auto club for their drivers' licenses probably wished they had taken advantage of the first weeks of the license sale when no one had to wait.

For more than two hours last evening before closing time, a line formed at all windows in the office, and extended up the street.

With the deadline — midnight Saturday — little more than two days away, there were still more than 10,000 drivers in Mansfield who had not obtained licenses.

Frank Beverstock, deputy registrar, said 9,119 drivers' licenses and 763 chauffeurs' licenses had been sold up to today, which was a slight increase over the same period last year.

Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, warned that there would be no extension of time after midnight Saturday, and that city police and state highway officers over the state have promised cooperation in making checks of drivers. Driving with an improper license constitutes a misdemeanor, he pointed out, punishable by fine and imprisonment.

This year, for the first time, he said, motorists are required to display last year's license when applying for renewal.

AUTUMN'S IN AIR

Mercury Falls to 38 But Cloudy Skies, Rain Are Due Friday.

There was an autumn zip in the weather today, but the forecast said cloudy skies will bring rain and higher temperatures by Friday.

The mercury dropped to 38 degrees, only six above freezing, this morning. By noon, however, the sun had pushed the temperature up 40 degrees to 78.

Today's 38-degree reading was the second lowest of the season.

LOOT STATIONS

ASHLAND — Thefts at Erie railroad stations at nearby Nankin and Polk were reported to Ashland police by railroad officials.

A box containing 150 railroad car seals were reported stolen from the Nankin station, and $10.91 in cash and a pen and pencil were reported taken from the Polk depot. The robberies are believed to have taken place some time between Monday and today, police said.

FATHER, SON HELD

ASHLAND — Charged with the violation of his probation, Jacob Austen, 45, of near Ashland, was being held in the Ashland county jail here. His son, Richard, 18, is being held for investigation.

Austen was paroled from the Ohio State penitentiary last spring.

BATTLE RIPS DEM 'HARMONY'

Davey, Sawyer Factions Clash on Presidency for State Women's Group.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS O.—A "harmony" program for the annual meeting of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio collapsed today under the impact of a factional fight for the presidency.

Miss Catherine Carter, Norwood, representing the group favorable to Charles Sawyer, was nominated by the nominating committee. Immediately the name of Mrs. Lucille Elliott Cameron, Canton, was placed in nomination from the floor by the faction friendly to former Gov. Martin L. Davey. Mrs. Ann Makley, Dayton, now president, is ineligible for re-election. The election will be held today.

Efforts had been made to present a slate of candidates acceptable to both party factions.

Mrs. Martha A. Merriman, of Columbus, was the unopposed nominee for the first vice presidency.

Other nominations were: Second vice president, Miss Marie Dickson, Steubenville, and Mrs. Margaret Koehler, of Dayton; recording secretary, Mrs. Mary Boyle Burns, of Toledo; financial secretary, Mrs. Lena Siferd, of Lima, and treasurer, Mrs. Myrna Smith, of Kent.

Speaking at the luncheon will be leaders of two factions of the party, former Governor Martin L. Davey, and the man who beat him for the gubernatorial nomination last year, former Lieutenant Governor Charles Sawyer.

TAKES NEW POST

MT. GILEAD—K. K. Douglas, who was recently named a member of Morrow county fair board to succeed the late E. J. Willis, went to Columbus Monday to take over his new duties as superintendent of refinery examiners in the gasoline tax department of the state tax commission.

He will have supervision of the activities of approximately 20 examiners.

GETS $100 FINE

ASHLAND—The maximum fine provided by law was imposed against Herbert Peters of Ashland when arraigned for the third time before Justice of the Peace J. H. Armstrong on charges of intoxication.

Peters, arrested here by the sheriff's department, was taken to the Toledo workhouse where he will work out the fine of $100 and costs imposed.

WILL HE DEBATE?

Ailing Glass Might Not Be Able To Aid New Deal Cause.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Illness raised a question today as to whether Sen. Carter Glass, 81-year-old Virginia Democrat, would be able to participate in the senate debate in behalf of President Roosevelt's proposal to repeal the arms embargo.

Glass, who has sided with the president on this issue after strongly criticizing a number of his policies in the past, is ill of bronchitis.

SUIT DISMISSED

Plaintiff Fails to Appear in $50,000 Damage Action.

The new county petit jury reported for duty for the first time this morning, but it had no work to do.

Convening at 9:15 a. m. to hear a $50,000 personal damage case, the jurors were dismissed about 10 minutes later when John M. Grubaugh, Mansfield, plaintiff in the case, failed to appear.

The suit, which was filed two and a half years ago, was dismissed by Judge C. H. Huston for want of prosecution. The action was against the Ohio Public Service company and sought damages for injuries Grubaugh allegedly received about four years ago in the village of Rome when he came in contact with a power line.

Dismissal of the case clears the docket for the week and it had not been determined today when the jury will convene again.

TEACHERS MEET

Galion Faculty Members Hold Outing at Heise Park.

GALION — The initial meeting of the school year of the Galion Classroom Teachers' association was in the form of a wiener roast, a reception for new teachers, and a farewell to Elizabeth Bland, secretary to Supt. O. E. Hill, who will be married Oct. 14 and make her future home in Boston, Mass.

The affair was held at Heise park, and there were nearly 70 present. This number included teachers, faculty wives, members of the board of education and wives, the janitorial force and wives, and school secretaries.

Arrangements were in charge of Martha Albrecht of the social committee, and Alice Plack, program chairman. Around the campfire where the group prepared their food, songs provided entertainment. E. R. Pickering, principal of Junior high school building, and president of the association, opened the meeting and then turned it over to Supt. Hill who introduced the new teachers of the school system, and presented Miss Bland with a gift in behalf of the association.

BRITISH LIST PEACE TERMS

End of Naziism, Restoration of Polish, Czech Independence Among Conditions.

which has been dangled before their eyes thrice in the last month.

Hitler Gave Hint.

Twice the hint came from Hitler himself. First he suggested to Sir Nevile Henderson, then British ambassador, that he might retire to his mountain eyrie at Berchtesgaden and devote himself to his former profession and current hobby of painting.

Then, when he sent troops marching into Poland, he named Goering, then Rudolf Hess, deputy party leader, as his possible future successors as chancellor.

Later in a speech by Goering the No. 2 Nazi unobtrusively mentioned for the first time in Germany the possibility of a new reich government without Hitler.

Neutral observers here hold that virtually the entire Nazi hierarchy must be removed before the Allies will talk peace. Well-informed circles point out, however, that now more than ever the Allies have no desire to cut up Germany and return it to its pre-Bismarck status.

Due to Russia's powerful thrust westwards into Poland and possible action against the Baltic and Balkan states, the Allies hope really to build what Hitler has always professed to be—a bulwark against penetration of Bolshevism in western Europe.

Therefore, a strong Germany benevolently governed by the military clique might be acceptable to the western powers.

Furthermore, there are three points to which the government the allies expect to succeed Hitler must agree:

1—Reestablishment of the independence of Poland with her frontiers the same as before the German invasion Aug. 29.

2—Reestablishment of the Czechoslovakian frontier as outlined in the Munich agreement of last September—which would leave Germany the Sudetenland.

3—Evidence of sincere German willingness to end economic warfare and unprovoked acts of aggression.

The part which Soviet Russia may play in Germany's peace plans remains to be seen. Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky called on Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax last night and, the Daily Telegraph said today, declared it was not possible to make any definite statement of their immediate policy.

Future action, Maisky assertedly said, depends on other factors and events over which Moscow has no control.

COURT ENJOINS 2 EX-OFFICIALS OF FIRM WHO REFUSED TO QUIT

ASHLAND—Two former officials of the Brethren Publishing company of Ashland who refused to quit after they were discharged Tuesday were enjoined today by a court order from going back to their jobs.

Affected by the order were Rev. Charles W. Mayes, former editor and supervisor of publications, and J. C. Beal, who was discharged as secretary of publications.

The board of directors of the publishing company obtained the injunctions in common pleas court after accusing Rev. Mayes and Beal of insubordination. The two officials of the publishing company were dismissed two days ago by the directors but they continued to work.

Granted by Judge H. E. Culbertson, the injunctions enjoin Rev. Mayes and Beal from "retaining employment" at the firm or attempting to interfere with the company's business.

Both men had held their posts with the company about four years. Rev. Mayes is pastor of the West Tenth Street Brethren church in Ashland.

The publishing house prints all of the official publications of the Brethren church which founded and supports Ashland college.

G. O. P. OPENS DRIVE OCT. 8

Cramer, Secretary of County Committee, Chosen to Head Municipal Campaign.

Atty. Stuart H. Cramer will head the Republican municipal campaign which will get under way in Mansfield during the week of Oct. 8, party leaders said today.

Cramer, who is secretary of the county Republican executive committee, was chosen as campaign manager despite the committee's previous announcement that the campaign would be handled by the committee as a unit.

The G. O. P. drive for municipal offices will not be opened officially until after the final registration date, Oct. 9, Ralph Hardy, executive chairman, said.

Party workers are contracting prospective voters now, urging them to register before the deadline so they can vote at the November election. About 4,000 Mansfielders were dropped from election board's lists last winter and they must re-register by Oct. 9 to vote this fall.

William J. Locke, the Republican candidate for mayor, said he will compaign "on my own" until the party's vote drive gets under way in two weeks.

(Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, announced yesterday in the house of commons that 20 German planes had attacked a squadron of British ships, but without scoring any hits. He said one airplane was shot down, one was badly damaged and the crew of the third were captured on alighting on the water.)

On the western front the high command said "there were no noteworthy fighting activities," but it did announce that "one enemy plane" had been brought down in an air fight over Saarbruecken.

Hint Nazis Sunk $16,000,000 Ship.

BERLIN—(U.P.)—The German wireless broadcast a hint today that the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal was the warship hit by a heavy Nazi bomb during a German aerial attack on the British fleet in the North Sea.

The German broadcast, referring to the British admiralty denial that any British warship had been damaged, asked:

"Where is the Ark Royal?"

"English people: Ask your admiralty."

The Ark Royal is an aircraft carrier of 22,000 tons with a normal compliment of 1,600 officers and men. She carries 60 airplanes normally.

The Ark Royal, built in 1937, is one of the newest British aircraft carriers and cost about $16,000,000.

From the adventures of fishermen in the cold north, the stories of both of the new books this week are taken. Of course the heroes are boys and there is much excitement in both books.

DEEP SILVER, by Nora Burglon—Once again Miss Burglon has given us a new story of Scandinavian people. This time it is concerned with Lofoten fishermen for codfish. More particularly this is the story of Evald, a foundling who has grown up under the stern care of Ola. He had some companionship from his pet wolf and an eagle, but it wasn't easy to take them with him on a fishing trip.

FIRE IN THE ICE, by A. D. Divine—The modern methods of whaling on the Alaskan coast make exciting adventure for the boys in this story. The burning of their mother ship and the dangerous escape of the fishers keep the suspense to the very end.

Park Groups Push Ticket Sale For 4 Entertainments

A ticket campaign for four entertainments which will be presented here in October under the auspices of the Mansfield Public Parks association was under way today.

Members of the association are in charge of the ticket sale. Funds from the programs which will be presented in the First Congregational church on successive Friday nights, will be used to finance the association's civic activities including the Fourth of July celebration and the Christmas week open-air community sings.

The first event, Phil Clark's Marching Men of Song, will be given Oct. 6.

The others are Clarence W. Sorensen, lecturer, on Oct. 13; the Di Crosta-Ferrari company presenting "Musical Moments," Oct. 20; and the Glen Wells Players, Oct. 27.

The Marching Men of Song are noted for the military precision with which they appear and carry through their program. Phil Clark, leader of the male quartet, is a concert tenor who has made coast-to-coast tours as a soloist and was a feature artist at the Dallas Centennial two years ago.

Sorensen, the second event of the entertainment festival, will provide a change from talks of war and foreign entanglements. He is an adventurer who has traveled the caravan trails of Arabia. He will talk on "Arabian Trails."

The third program brings Di Crosta and Miss Ferrari in "Musical Moments."

The final offering will be a three act play, presented by the Glen Wells company, entitled "Youth Carries the Torch."

MRS. ROOSEVELT SEES U. S. IN ROLE AIDING 'LASTING PEACE'

By RUBY A. BLACK
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—The United States will be in a better position to help make a "more lasting peace" at the end of this war if its fighting forces are not involved in the conflict, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt believes.

Such a peace is necessary if civilization is to be preserved, she said. We are doomed, she explained, if the world must continue having a big war every 20 to 25 years and a lot of little wars in between.

As one great nation at peace, a responsibility lies on this country to try to alleviate suffering and to bring about a state of mind in which a more lasting peace can be made, Mrs. Roosevelt said at a press conference.

"The peace must not sow the seeds of the next war," she said, adding that the roots of the present war come from the Versailles treaty.

"It gives me a horrible sinking feeling to hear people say, 'Let them stew in their own juices, just so we keep out,'" Mrs. Roosevelt said. "We can't go scot free. It just doesn't happen that way. But I hope and pray we can keep out of war."

Mrs. Roosevelt reiterated that she favors repeal of the arms embargo as the safer way to maintain our neutrality.

The president never has praised or reproved anything Mrs. Roosevelt has written in her daily column, not even the comment that he always thinks buildings at his Hyde Park estate will cost less than that the architects estimate, she said. Her comment inspired many editorials comparing Mr. Roosevelt's attitude on personal expenditures to those on national spending. Neither one tries to influence each other's thinking, she said.

UNUSUAL NOVEL BY BRICKLAYER ON LIBRARY LIST

Young Italian Writes of Back-breaking Labor to Support Mother, 7 Children.

Title, author and novel are equally interesting in CHRIST IN CONCRETE, one of this week's new book at the Public library. It is written by Pietro Di Donato, a young Italian bricklayer, who writes much of himself into his novel.

It is the story of a young Italian who, after the death of his father, becomes a bricklayer's apprentice to earn a living for his mother and seven brothers and sisters. The author writes with intense feeling of the back-breaking, unremitting labor, interrupted only by the blessings of food and nightly rest.

The book describes with realism scenes of daily life in the tenements. Six other new novels will be put into circulation Monday. They are:

LIFE MAKES ADVANCES by Madeleine Boyd is the story of Nicole Desrieux who accepted a job in Dublin to escape the life of a middle class French woman.

LOVE IN OUR TIME, by Norman Collins is a delightful novel of a young couple, threatened by all of the difficulties of modern middle-class life, who somewhat muddle through to an enduring happiness.

Nazi Critic Writes.

Herman Rauschning is the latest "inner critic" of the Nazi plan to give public voice to his criticism. His book, REVOLUTION OF NIHILISM: WARNING TO THE WEST, is an indictment of Hitler's ideas and regime, and the work takes on importance when it is remembered that the author is a former Nazi, an East Prussian who became Nazi president of the Danzig senate.

He writes that the Third Reich is a purely revolutionary movement, bent on destruction. The book is startling, but some of its assertions have already become facts. To those who are trying to understand what is behind the recent events in Europe, this book offers some explanation.

COUNTRY LAWYER by Bellamy Partridge contains incidents in the life of a country attorney who practiced law in Phelps, N. Y. from the late 60's until the World war. These stories were found in a little black notebook kept secretly by Samuel Partridge, the author's father, and they give a remarkable vivid picture of village life.

SERVICE ENTRANCE, by Kyra Coritzina contains the memoirs of a Park avenue cook, whose husband had been an officer in the Imperial Russian army under the Czar. The theme of the book and many of the incidents remind one of "Tovarich."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Simile: As confidence-inspiring as a censored war report from Berlin.

One reader suggests that a special examination should be required before granting a motorist the right to use a horn.

Word comes that the onion and the cabbage have been crossed on a Virginia experimental farm—argument now being as to whether the outcome is a cabion or an onbage.

Trade Worth the Effort

THE UNITED STATES has new trade opportunities in South America, opened to it by the war in Europe. Their proper development will mean new business, plus increased understanding, good will and fellowship in the western hemisphere.

There is a catch to fulfilment of this happy prospect, however. Those trade opportunities cannot be grasped if this country regards them as all going one way. The immediate effect of the war across the Atlantic will be to curtail the purchasing power of the South American countries, for Europe will have to stop buying from them some of the goods it has been taking, and that will leave them less money with which to buy our goods. In order to sell more in South America this country will have to buy more in South America.

That isn't easy to do. We can't drink much more of their coffee and aren't pleased at the thought of buying their beef, hides and grain. It may be necessary to set up special subsidies and credits until new trade lines can be opened. Increasing tourist travel in South America will help some. So will an open-minded determination to establish a trade beneficial to both Americas.

It's a long-range investment in business and friendship, to be undertaken wisely and cautiously but wholeheartedly.

All this talk in Paris about "the return of the bastle" may have reference to confusion instead of wearing apparel.

Good Traffic News

THE Illinois highway department finds that nine cities in the state, with populations between 10,000 and 25,000, reached the middle of September without a single traffic fatality so far in 1939. One city in the next size-range—25,000 to 50,000—also has a clean slate. There's bad weather ahead, in which traffic becomes more hazardous, but these ten cities may have acquired safe driving habits by now and be able to continue their fine showing.

The Association of American Railroads provides another good traffic report. Fatalities resulting from grade crossing accidents in the first six months of 1939 were 16 fewer than in the same period of 1938. Any gain in this particular field is welcome, for motorists up to now have seemed to persevere in the folly of racing with trains even when they showed sense otherwise.

The process of eliminating grade crossings continues, as does the work of providing better warning facilities at those which still exist. The railroads are doing their part, with marked success. It's up to the motorists to do theirs.

No use starting to count the "shopping days 'til Christmas" until the customary date has been confirmed.

Fair Profit Is Essential

DURING the course of a recent address, Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, said: "The indispensable prerequisite to the restoration of prosperity and improvement in the standard of living is re-establishment of confidence in the safety and productivity of business investments."

In another address, Henry R. Kinsey, past president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, said: "Capital will not again become active without inducement and such inducement means a fair profit."

In those two statements, shorn of technicalities, is the clear reason for the existence of the so-called "idle capital" problem. The man with a hundred dollars or the man with a million isn't going to risk it unless he feels confidence in the future of his investment—and feels that he has a fair chance to make a profit. It's very easy to denounce the profit motive, and to talk about production for use instead of production for profit. But that doesn't hide the fact that the hope of profit was the dominant factor that led to the building of this country—and that the hope of profit must be the dominant factor that will cause still greater progress in the years that lie ahead.

Qualifications for democracy do not come as a gift—they must be developed by study, training and self control.

Those Determined Britishers

BRITAIN has had some hard blows lately, in the destruction of so many merchant ships and war craft, the collapse of Poland, the threat of Russian intervention, and the growing fright of small powers whose co-operation Britain has expected. But the only response from London is that Britain will fight on in the crusade against military autocracy in Europe.

"We are conscious of fighting other battles as well as our own," says the London Times, "and we are the more nerved for the years of war ahead. Defeat and compromise alike are wholly out of the reckoning. The war will end with the extinction of Hitlerism and with that only."

The situation must have looked even darker to the English at the beginning of the last century, when they undertook their crusade against Napoleon, but they finally overmastered him.

A vociferous minority may seem to outnumber a submissive majority.

Prefer Steady Prices

THE attitude of many business organizations toward the question of prices has changed since 1917. The tendency today is to go easy, not to raise prices sharply or unduly. The reasons which business leaders give for this policy would have been valid then, but the lessons of the World war and its economic consequences had not been learned.

Business leaders know now that sudden and unjustified price increases would alienate public good will and confidence. They know such increases would precipitate fresh labor troubles, closer government scrutiny and probably some restraining taxes. If they let prices soar unnecessarily, bitter experience reminds them, there might be another boom to explode after a bit. Advocates of moderation have all the good arguments on their side.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—New York isn't the most fascinating city in the world or even in the United States, but it can come close to satisfying your needs and offering you 20 kinds of enchantment if you care enough to go in search for it.

You can sit at a table in the sidewalk cafes and watch people go past by the hour, strangers, foreigners, champagne salesmen from France, coffee salesmen from Brazil, organ grinders, soldiers, and that occasional phenomenon, some one you used to go to school with a long, long time ago.

* * *

YOU can stand in West street and see the strangely empty shipping lanes, or stand in South street, and see that new cruiser Helena, a 10,000-tonner, awaiting sailing order for her shakedown cruise. Destroyers and cruisers and submarines are always in evidence.

But if the waterfront bores you, there is always the parade of the little show biddies—young girls who are dancers and who have jobs in musical comedies or in night clubs, or girls just like them who haven't jobs. You can always tell them. They are perhaps the smartest dressed girls in America—not from the standpoint of affluence, but from necessity. Show girls must dress well in New York, and they have learned to dress well on little. They may be a shade too theatrical in make-up . . . their artificial eyelashes are sometimes a good two inches in length, which is just a wee bit too long according to my taste in eyelashes . . . but they are bright and trim and cheery. And you never see them without the little tell-tale handbag, the identification badge of girls in the line. These bags carry make-up, a pair of dancing shoes, and probably shorts, or something loose and free to rehearse in. They may get an assignment and go into rehearsal on 20 minutes' notice. If they had to go home for clothes some other girl would probably get the job.

* * *

I LIKE New York because it is impersonal. You can take it or leave it, and believe me, it can take you or leave you. It has a thousand voices, and yet if you want it, too, it will be as silent as the tomb. New Yorkers all know the trick of shutting out the world. You can pass by half-constructed buildings where riveters and trip-hammers are screaming, and scarcely notice them.

Except in isolated instances, New York is quite ugly to look upon. There never is beauty in too much concrete and steel. A medieval town, perhaps, with turrets and spires, but not a modern city. Think of an oblong rock that is quite barren of vegetation, except for an oblong square in the center. Imagine a million square boxes on this rock, some merely tall, others towering. That is Manhattan. But sometimes the blue mist of enchantment steals over the city. Sometimes at twilight something gets into the air that you can't define, except that it leaves you with a sense of expectancy, an inexplicable knowing that something is going to happen. You look at those boxes on the slab of rock, which is Manhattan, and then, as some one has said, like that—ten thousand windows suddenly flower!

The Americans began the siege of Yorktown on Sept. 28, 1781. This resulted in the British, under General Cornwallis, surrendering to the United States Army under General Washington.

"A Child Is Born."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SO THEY ROUNDED UP THE STORKS. Yes, it's a true story—but don't laugh yet! It happened in Hollywood, not so long ago, either. We Girls had started to bob our hair, wear "divided skirts" and yell for Equal Rights. So, since things were Going to the Dogs at any rate, some daring director decided to profit thereby.

And proceeded to pull a shocker wherein the Blushing Bride was depicted bending over certain Little Garments while the Prospective Papa tottered with surprise, gasping, "How come, Mabel?"—or words to that effect.

Was it not a touching tableau? asked the pleased director. Yes, it was NOT, roared the outraged censor. Had he gone crazy, showing the Facts of Life like that, plain as punch? FOR PETE'S SAKE, WHY NOT? responded the indignant film king. There was a Perfectly Respectable Married Lady—with a ring on her left hand to prove the fact—what was wrong with HER having a baby? EVERYTHING! Howled the Censor. Didn't he know that all Nice Children believed that Babies were brought by Storks? How in heck did he s'pose they'd feel when they discovered otherwise?

Storks? STORKS? So that was all he wanted, breathed the relieved Director. Just a stack o' storks? Stick around, Boys, and we'll fix that in a jiffy! And fix it he did. Before you could say Papa Dionne, there were Storks all over that sequence! Storks popping out of the eaves . . . peeping down the chimney . . . practically nesting in the Little Garments. Now at last would the Great Clean American Public be satisfied? But the Censor wasn't taking any chances. He knew his G. C. A. P. So with a firm and final blue pencil—

HE STRUCK OUT THE STORKS!

So now you can laugh—provided, of course, that you think it's funny. Personally, I don't. To the contrary, I consider that whole Shush Era to be the most stupid, absurd, disgusting and frequently tragic era in our history. Why the proudest, happiest and most beautiful period in a woman's life should be treated as a nasty mystery, approached in ignorance and fear and attended with misery and shame, has always passed my comprehension. And for the steenth time I'm doffing my hat to Don Quixote Winchell for tilting at our most vicious windmill and welcoming the baby as a Blessed Event instead of a Dirty Joke.

All of which occurred to me afresh when I saw a preview of a moving new picture—"A CHILD IS BORN." Here, at last, is Birth as it should be shown—and known. Lovely Geraldine Fitzgerald is the leading mother in that sad sisterhood who are permitted to leave their jail cells temporarily, that their babes may be born without the stigma of prison bars. And in that series of birth, every angle of life's greatest miracle is portrayed.

Would I take a sixteen-year-old daughter of my own to such a picture? I would not only take her, but I would thank God that it has been made possible for her to learn her body's most essential truth in so fine and right a manner, rather than have her young innocence defiled by furtive whisperings, as her mother's was before her.

Timely Editorial

Adjourning Politics.

From the president and other high officials on down to leaders of both parties it seems to be generally agreed now that politics should be adjourned and that this country should afford the world a needed example of national unity under the democratic system.

Fortunately in all essential matters we can have that unity without censorship, the suppression of free speech and the crushing of other personal liberties. Neither its existence nor its maintenance calls even for a voluntary suppression of convictions or divergent views. A man can still be an American and disagree on a national policy, neutrality or something else.

It is as Americans, in fact, that we can be and are a unit. We should not be Americans if we were suddenly fused into one mass of yes-men.

The kind of politics that ought to be adjourned, not only now but at all other times, is the narrow partisan kind that is aimed at selfish advantage. The kind that does not need to be adjourned now or at any other time is the kind that puts the country's welfare above every other interest.—Kansas City Star.

Health And Diet

Diet Important Anemia Treatment.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THERE are many different types of anemia, and more are being discovered daily. The treatment varies in each case, but there are certain fundamental principles that should be followed in all cases.

The mechanical replacement of loss of blood, by transfusion, is an established and life-saving procedure. It should be considered in all cases.

Removal of the cause of bleeding or blood loss is the next point of attack. In emergency cases it is really secondary to transfusion because a deficient amount of blood in the body must be replaced immediately, as it may be a question of life and death.

In the use of iron and liver we have the two great remedies that apply to most forms of anemia.

Value of Diet.

A point that is not sufficiently stressed is the value of a diet no matter what form of anemia is present. There should be an adequate diet, with emphasis on liver, raw meats and eggs. Whole liver, while specific for pernicious anemia, may be valuable in all types of anemia.

An adequate vitamin and ash content should be assured by the inclusion of abundant fruits and vegetables. Milk, the starchy vegetables, cereals and sweets are useless for blood formation, so they should only be used after an adequate supply of meats, fruits and green vegetables is provided.

A diet used in a large hospital as a routine in anemia cases is as follows:

Breakfast—Fresh fruit; meat—one-fourth pound steak or three lamb chops; buttered toast; coffee, tea or milk.

Suggestions for Lunch.

Lunch—One-fourth pound liver; two medium-sized potatoes. Any of the following vegetables: asparagus, Brussels sprouts, sauerkraut, cauliflower, cucumbers, turnip, spinach, greens, carrots, squash, pumpkin, celery, string beans, cabbage, beets, peas, tomato, lettuce. Include fruit gelatin or fresh fruit from the following list: oranges, pineapple, raisins, apples, lemons, strawberries, grapefruit, prunes, blackberries, apricots. Also, bread or toast with butter; coffee, tea or milk.

Dinner—One of the following meats: lamb or mutton chop, three; steak, one-fourth pound; rare roast beef, two large slices. Also, vegetables, any two from list above; bread or toast with butter; fresh fruit from list above, or fruit gelatin; coffee, tea or milk.

'Upper Crust'—Tops in Society.

We call them the four hundred, tops in society,—and the upper-crust: but the last was first.

A little over one hundred years ago, there appeared in a weekly newspaper of Nova Scotia, a story detailing the adventures of one Sam Slick.

The father of this brain-child was the historian, humorist and jurist Thomas Chandler Haliburton, who in his subsequent book Sam Slick in England, introduced into the English language a permanent figure of speech in the line: "I want you to see Peel, Stanley, Graham, Sheil, Russell, Macaulay, Old Joe, and soon. They are all upper-crust here."

Ohio Anecdotes

Pioneer Educator.

UNDAUNTED by frequent forays by Ohio Indian tribesmen, the Rev. Thaddeus Dodd in 1777 sought out Lindley's Settlement, Pa., in what is now Washington county, intending to establish the first classical school west of the Alleghenies.

Indian attacks during the revolution delayed the project, and it was not until two years later that he bought a farm, built a log cabin and began holding religious meetings.

"Incursions of the savages rendered impossible," records indicate, the holding of the first meeting at the prior designated place.

Mr. Dodd finally opened his log cabin academy in 1782 with 13 pupils. Difficulties caused the school's closing two years later.

As one of the trustees, Mr. Dodd received a charter in 1787 for Washington Academy, which in 1806 became Washington college, and today is the Washington-Jefferson university.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Behind the closed doors of various isolationist senators, all is not harmonious in their fight against the president and his lifting of the arms embargo.

Only 24 hours after their first strategy meeting, four Republican senators—Vandenberg of Michigan, Danaher of Connecticut, Gurney of South Dakota, and Bridges of New Hampshire were up in arms against the attempts of the LaFollette brothers (Senator Bob and ex-Governor Phil) to dominate the isolationist fight.

Vandenberg and Bridges, assiduously nursing presidential booms, were particularly peeved.

To senatorial friends they complained that they had no intention of becoming the tail on the Progressive kite. If the LaFollette boys thought they could dominate the neutrality fight, Vandenberg and Bridges made clear, they had another think coming. Senator Bridges even went so far as to indicate that he would quit the isolationist bloc if the LaFollette campaign continued.

What Republican senators cannot get out of their minds is that Phil LaFollette may be using the neutrality fight to stage a comeback for himself and his third-party movement. Nothing in recent political history fell flatter than the LaFollette third party, except possibly the subsequent campaign of its main author to be governor of Wisconsin.

So you can't blame the Vandenberg-Bridges group for being suspicious when Phil and Bob propose to set up a nationwide neutrality organization, with branches in every city, national headquarters in Washington, and with Phil doing all the directing.

An organization of this kind can all too easily be turned into the nucleus of a third party after the neutrality fight is over, and the Republican group is not blind to that fact.

* * *

Phil's "Vigilantes."

PHIL has given them enthusiastic assurances that he will have no trouble financing the campaign, and it looks as if the aid of Henry Ford may be enlisted (even though Brother Bob LaFollette's Civil Liberties committee has been casting an eye on some of Ford's labor policies).

Phil's organization is even being called tentatively "The Vigilantes," despite Brother Bob's vigorous investigation of vigilante organizations.

Note—In the end Senators Bridges and Vandenberg took a flat stand that they would have absolutely nothing to do with the LaFollette campaign, and Phil LaFollette, in disgust, left Washington.

Hitler and LaGuardia.

THE president had a hard time suppressing his mirth when Mayor LaGuardia read him the resolution of the conference of mayors pledging their silence on international affairs during the European war. LaGuardia headed the mayors' delegation which went to the White House, where he read the resolution with great solemnity.

Then, shaking with suppressed laughter, the president said, "Of course, Fiorello, that resolution applies to you, too."

LaGuardia flushed, then grinned broadly and replied, "Yep, and I'm taking the pledge right now. No more dirty cracks at Hitler."

* * *

Press-Shy Stettinius.

WITH the War Resources Board a new type of official has come to Washington, a type which has made Washington newsmen wonder what kind of censorship might be clamped down in case of war.

Head of the board is Edward R. Stettinius, jr., wonder-boy of the industrial world. Working with him on the board is John L. Pratt, vice president of General Motors, and Stettinius' former boss.

Last week a Washington newsman, accustomed to writing about all sorts of people, from kings to congressmen, dropped in on Pratt and told him he was planning to write a personality sketch of Stettinius.

"But," remarked Mr. Pratt in icy horror, "has Mr. Stettinius given you permission to write a story about him?"

* * *

Merry-Go-Round.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES has recovered from the influenza attack which seriously incapacitated him last spring. After a summer of rest and quiet travel in the west, he will return to the bench next week as active as ever. . . . Edmund Toland, general counsel of the house labor board investigating committee, has introduced something new in congressional probes. He is sending out mimeographed press releases, written in the form of news stories, regarding his activities. . . . While General Pershing has had no active connection with the army for years, he still has a staff of three permanently attached to him. They are Colonel George E. Adamson, Pershing's secretary since the Villa expedition; a warrant officer; and a civilian clerk. . . . The president pronounces Stalin "Sta-leen." . . . The following is quoted from a letter received by Senate Republican Leader Charles McNary, "The government must keep an eye out for spices. They come here from every country."

With 600,000 Poles in Michigan and a re-election campaign next year, Vandenberg is taking a big chance in fighting embargo repeal. This, plus his motley associates in the isolationist bloc—Progressives, Farmer-Laborites, Democrats—makes Vandenberg a most unhappy man.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

March Out And Get It.

March out and get this thing you want,
Take courage in your hand.
And faith, for these two, you should
Be able to command
The world. Go to you task assured
And confident that you
Can win; the goal halfway is yours
If you your dreams pursue.
In this high fashion. Fear and dread,
Uncertainty, these are
The elements that many times
Cause men to lose their star.

The Storm Window

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HOUSES, they say, are like the ones who build them. This country house in which we are living has a few very comfortable features that seem even a bit luxurious by comparison with the simplicity of the architecture and the plainness of the materials used.

One of these, which we thoroughly appreciate, is the storm window in our bedroom. It is of hardwood, with a well screened outer frame for summer and a glass-in, ventilated inset for the colder weather. In winter it will keep the coldest wind at bay, while still allowing free access of air. It faces to the southwest, and all summer long we have enjoyed a cooling breeze almost every night.

The couple whose home was here before us enjoyed it, too. He put it there for her, who had become an invalid. He doubtless saved awhile to buy it, for his wages from grimy toil furnished her the comforts that she had. And she was not unhappy, for she had her good husband, two tall sons, and a host of friends throughout the community. Her name was for many years a synonym for cheerful fortitude. Only when she could not climb the stairs any more, they moved away. Just this week she died—and left him desolate.

Early this morning I awoke and lay upon one elbow looking out upon the foggy landscape. A moment before all had been murky and unreal outside. It had been night, close, dark and impenetrable. The sky was blotted out and the distant woods loomed, inklike.

Now a gentle morning breeze crept through the window and a faint brilliance began to illuminate the black tops of the forest trees. I saw the rolling fog begin to slowly lift and melt away. A distant star shone out for just an instant.

My thoughts went to those two who had put that window there. Death has parted them, after years of threatening to do so. It will be hard for him to face the dawn alone, but their children are by his side—and children do help.

But does he know, I wondered, how beautifully the light steals in, for others, through that storm window? Does he know how that bit of extra comfort, dictated by his love for her, will keep on adding unexpected blessing to everyone who ever lives in this old house?

Perhaps the thought that the world is a pleasanter place because of what he was able to do for her may help a little to ease the pain of parting. Perhaps, after a while, even for a tired, sorely bereaved heart, consoling daybreak may come creeping in through the storm windows.

SOVIETS, NAZIS MAP FUTURE OF BALTIC STATES

Estonia Wonders What Price Russia Will Demand for Sunken Vessel.

Make Futile Boast.

Yet his real mission in Moscow was to try to placate the Soviets and forestall a stroke. Estonian army leaders valiantly avowed their determination to fight to maintain the 21-year-old country's independence — but the boast came from an army of only 110,000 men.

Actual seizure of Estonia, however, did not appear to fit into the Soviet's immediate plans. But the right to place garrisons on islands controlling Tallinn, and granting of certain shipping privileges in the port, were expected to be sought by the Soviets.

As Reval, Tallinn was the chief Russian naval base in the Baltic during the World war. And Soviet naval strategists are said to hold its use necessary if Russia is again to become a sea power.

Germany, in spite of Von Ribbentrop's presence in Moscow, was said to look with some disfavor upon the prospect of Soviet expansion in the Baltic, and the foreign minister was reported in some quarters to be trying to swing Russia's interest back to the lost province of Bessarabia, Rumania.

Istanbul heard that Shukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, is in Moscow with authority to sign a pact settling Black sea and eastern Balkan problems.

Such a pact would involve only one territorial change—the return of Dobruja, Rumania, to its former owner, Bulgaria. In return for Turkish agreement to close the Dardanelles to all foreign shipping, including British, Russia would renounce her claims on Bessarabia, this report said.

In any event, the allies were said to be nearing reconciliation to the apparent fact that Turkey, formerly a member of the "peace front," now is lost to them.

Soviet Navy Cruising Off Estonia, Claim.

HELSINGFORS, Finland—(U.P.)—The Soviet navy was reported cruising in battle formation off the Estonian coast today as the Russian radio broadcast opened up with a vigorous campaign against the Estonian government.

Usually reliable sources previously had said that Estonia accepted some of the Soviet demands for naval and economic cooperation against the advice of Estonian military leaders.

It was believed here, however, that the present Estonian government headed by President Konstantin Paets and Premier Kaarel Eenpalu was regarded in Moscow as "not sufficiently friendly" toward the Soviets and that "reconstruction" of the regime might be undertaken to improve relations.

Sees Russians, Nazi Heading for Split.

PARIS — (U.P.) — Belief was expressed today that Russia and Germany might be approaching the first difference in their new friendship.

Naturally, in an allied country, the wish for such a development might be father to the thought that it was likely. However, it was suggested that the visit of German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop to Moscow was made partly because Adolf Hitler wanted to discuss Russia's aims in the Baltic. Doubt was expressed that Germany so far had given its consent to any Russian moves in that area.

French observers inclined to the belief that Russia intended to use Estonia to strengthen its position in the inner Baltic, and as part of that move to acquire the Estonian islands of Dagoe and Oesel. Oesel is 280 miles from Danzig and 200 miles from East Prussia.

Allies belief here was that so far Germany and Russia had agreed on nothing but the partition of Poland, and that broader problems of Baltic, Danubian and Balkan problems still had to be discussed, in view of Russia's revived interest in Europe.

again is functioning regularly, thanks to the organization of convoys and an air and naval patrol.

"Yesterday afternoon our air force and the British force operating together brought down several enemy pursuit planes.

"There was activity by our reconnaissance planes during the night."

Immediately after the declaration that French merchant shipping can roam the seas in safety, Premier Eduard Daladier conferred with Georges Pernot, the minister in charge of seeing that France receives supplies in spite of the U-boats.

Artilley, which has kept up a constant fire from both sides of the line for many days, was not mentioned in the communique.

It was assumed that infantry units continued harrying the German outposts while land reconnoitering patrols ceaselessly tested the German lines.

Although the Germans were reported still moving up reinforcements to both ends of the Limes line, apparently in preparation for a large-scale attack, there was no sign that the French were ready yet for their big push.

Patrols, military authorities indicated, would continue their slow and careful work until the more solid fortifications of the German westwall are reached.

20 German Subs Captured, Report.

PARIS —(INS)— The French and British navies have succeded thus far in destroying or capturing 20 German submarines, or almost one-third of the total the reich is believed to have commissioned before the outbreak of war, it was learned in Paris today.

A high authority revealed this figure to International News Service after official announcement was made that Franco-British naval convoy and sea patrol has developed sufficiently to enable resumption of sea commerce.

(Editors Note: Prior to outbreak of war, Germany was understood to have had approximately 70 submarines in operation, with an additional 30 or 35 in process of construction.)

BUTLER LABELS WAR 'TEA PARTY' IN SHELBY TALK

Retired Major General Accuses Allies of Waiting for U. S. to Enter Conflict.

SHELBY—Calling the present war in Europe a "tea party," General Smedley D. Butler of the United States marines, retired, spoke before a capacity audience of some 700 persons Wednesday night at the high school auditorium. The meeting was sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars lodge.

Major General Butler, who spoke in behalf of peace and of keeping the United States out of war, said "the Allies' armies are just putting up a sham battle waiting for the United States to get into the affair."

The soldiers probably are playing ball between the trenches, Major General Butler said.

Major General Butler spoke against lifting the arms embargo act. Butler pointed out that the neutrality laws were passed during peaceful times for use when war was declared. "Now," Butler said, "with war here, the act is no good."

"I look for negotiations to be started soon for peace," Butler stated, "Germany has the land that it wants at this time and there is not much that England and France can do about getting the land back." Butler pointed out that if either the Allies or Germany tries to cross the French-German border, more than a million men would be lost by the attacking army.

As in the speech made here by Butler earlier this year, he again said that the United States did not need to fear attack from any foreign powers. Airplanes can not carry enough gas and bombs to do any damage coming from as long a distance as across the ocean, Butler disclosed. If they leave the gas behind they can carry enough bombs, but the planes will not be able to go the distance necessary to get here. If they leave the bombs behind they might as well stay home.

"On land there would be only a few ports that would enable a foreign power to land enough men to put up a fight in the United States. And if the men could be landed at these ports our armies would not stand by and help unload the ships," Butler said.

1,000 ADULTS ENROLL IN WPA CLASSES HERE

Score of Subjects Taught in Night Sessions Under Way at City Schools.

More than 1,000 Mansfielders had enrolled today in the city's WPA adult education program which provides free instruction in nearly a score of subjects for persons over 16 years old.

Men and women who missed the chance to go to school and others who seek special training offered in the course are attending the classes which are already under way in the fall and winter term.

Most of the classes are held at night and in schools and public buildings in all sections of the city. There is no compulsory attendance and classes are free.

Six instructors under the supervision of D. U. Rhees conduct the classes five nights a week, covering subjects ranging from simple mathematics and history to commercial law and psychology.

Analyzes Propaganda.

Rhees said a course in propaganda analysis has just been inaugurated in view of the number of "rumors" and possibly "colored information" coming into the United States from Europe.

The course, he said, is designed to enable the pupil to detect obvious attempts to influence the American people into harmful channels of thought. Rhees teaches the course.

Other topics offered in the school include shorthand and typing, salesmanship, current history, short story writing, public speaking, psychology, and English. Most courses cover a 16-week period.

Special classes are available for foreign-born residents who are preparing for citizenship examinations. Most of the 61 persons who were awarded citizenship rights Tuesday attended the WPA classes, Rhees said.

Silas Robinson, colored instructor, is in charge of courses for colored pupils at school buildings in the northern part of the city. Courses are offered in Negro history, current history, and public speaking.

Instructors in the school, in addition to Rhees and Robinson, are Warren Loomis, Paul McCreary, Mrs. Ellen Robinson, Phil Premy and Floyd Mumaw.

Enrollment is still open for the fall and winter courses. Registrations will be handled by Rhees at the West First street school.

War News Parallels That of 25 Years Ago

Refugees Caught In War Zone Beginning to Return, Wilson Called Congress and There Was Even Talk of Peace.

Although a quarter of a century separates September, 1914 and September, 1939, there is a striking similarity to be found in the newspaper headlines of then and now.

The World war of 1914 got under way a month earlier than the present European conflict, but even so there are interesting comparisons and parallels. And Mansfield citizens, caught in the war zones, were beginning to return home with their stories of conditions over there. Among the refugees were the late Mrs. C. H. Workman and her two daughters, the Misses Helen and Florence Workman, and James I. Muffley, then general secretary of the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. and his wife.

Muffley told Mansfield News reporters then that the war in Europe "is essential, for the world will be made safe for the democracies as a result of it and the world will benefit by it."

On Sept. 3, 1914, President Wilson had made a stirring plea to congress—also called into special session because of the war in Europe—asking it to levy a war tax on the nation that would raise $100,000,000 because he feared that the loss of tariff on foreign importations would cause a deficit at the end of the fiscal year of the then alarming figure of a hundred million!

(The present federal deficit is in the neighborhood of 40 billion dollars.)

Propagandists Busy.

Propaganda got under way at once in the World war. As early as Sept. 4 there were newspaper stories from London "verified by French students" of German atrocities on Belgium children, and of women and children lined up and shot.

The stories were harrowing ones, calculated to arouse the anger and indignation of United States.

Censorships were less rigid and there was a great deal more definite news as to battles, destruction and numbers dead. On Sept. 5, 1914, war losses were estimated at 200,000 for Germany and vaguely estimated between 40,000 and 150,000 for the allies.

Almost identical with headlines of a few days ago were those of Sept. 8, 1914:

TALK OF PEACE IS NOW CURRENT—GERMANY, CLAIMING TO HAVE BEATEN FRANCE TO HER KNEES, WILLING TO TERMINATE STRUGGLE. The only difference was that this year it was Poland instead of France.

And again on Sept. 15 there was this: RUMORS SPREAD THAT GERMAN CROWN PRINCE IS DEAD, which is also like the "rumor persists that Goebbels is actually dead," which appeared recently. Neither rumor was true.

One noticeable difference was that within a month after the war had started there was terrific fighting on all fronts, with the Russians engaging the Austrian-Hungarian forces—the Russians marshalled two million soldiers on a 250-mile front but accomplished little—and the English, French and Belgium armies were fighting furiously on the Western front.

A headline on Sept. 3 said: GREATEST BATTLE IN WORLD'S HISTORY RAGING—ALL NORTHERN FRANCE UNDER TEUTON CONTROL—PARIS ABANDONED AS FRENCH CAPITAL.

One of the remarkable differences was the lack of public opinion on the neutrality question which rages over the front pages of every paper in America today. In September, there seemed to be little or no mention of America entering the war; it seemed not to have occurred to America that this was a possibility at that time.

In fact, Americans were much more concerned over the "situation in Mexico" which later broke into the "Mexican Border war of 1916"—

And over the "wet and dry" battle which raged on all fronts in the nation.

RULES OUT 4TH OF SIGNATURES IN LATEST BIGELOW PETITIONS

The county board of elections today had ruled out 28 per cent of the 702 signatures on a second batch of Bigelow pension plan petitions which were sent here by the secretary of state for checking.

With only 202 invalid signatures, the 17 petitions had a considerable higher percentage of legal signers than the first group examined last month in which 67 per cent of the names were invalid.

The last batch of petitions will be returned to Columbus immediately to be included in a "reserve" supply provided by Herbert S. Bigelow, author of the pension plan, after previous petitions fell short of having the required number of legal signers.

Most of the signatures ruled out here were declared invalid because the signers were not registered voters or because wives used their husbands' names in signing.

The Bigelow plan will go on the Ohio ballot in November if its proponents provide the necessary 241,000 signers. The plan would give retired persons over 60 a pencion of $50 a month and couples $80 a month.

PENSION BOARD ELECTS TONIGHT

Group In Charge of Police Fund To Complete Reorganization.

The police pension board will complete its reorganization tonight when two councilmen and two policemen meet at the city building to select two citizens to complete the six-man board.

Present citizens' representatives are Earl K. Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, and Roy A. Isch, 31 Fair street, both of whom are expected to be reelected.

Following the election of officers, the board will act on an application for pension submitted last week by William Kneeland, patrolman on the police force, because of ill health.

FINISHES AUDIT

Examiner Returns Findings of $248 in School Districts.

Findings totaling $248, most of which represents unpaid findings from a previous examination, were returned today following a special audit of board of education records in the Union rural, Bloominggrove township and Butler township districts in northern Richland county.

The special audit, covering the period from February, 1938, to June 15, 1939, was made by Miss Vivian Dowds, state examiner, at the request of the boards of education in the three districts when school mergers eliminated two of them.

The Butler township district was transferred to Ashland county last June and the Bloominggrove township district was merged with the Union and Cass township districts. Weller and Franklin townships make up the Union school district.

Largest item listed among the unpaid findings in the three districts was one for $116 against W. D. Wareham, former clerk of the Union board. The amount, it was explained, represents pay collected by Wareham who allegedly failed to renew his bond immediately after being re-appointed.

CHAPTER XVI

"No, they ain't!" Elkanah intruded. "Mister Madison was mighty fond of that key. It's an antic, and Mr. Madison had a great time gettin' a lock made that he could use it in. No, sir, they ain't no duplycate, and he never let that key to anybody."

"I am interested in these Village Fathers, who seem to take their paternity in a strange way," Stone said. "I should like to talk with some of them, but I suppose that would not be an easy matter to arrange."

"I don't see why not," Craig said; "I'll take you to see them, when you like."

"Thank you, we'll see about it," and Stone looked thoughtful.

"Too bad," Sutton was saying, "You let your guests go away this morning. They should have been kept here, for questioning."

"They don't know anything," Sheldon declared. "Gifford Hale is a stranger practically, and George and Laura Lee are old friends. And one of the others, who left this morning, is returning now."

Yvette Verne's smart little car came up the avenue from the gate, Craig hurried to the front door. He met the girl on the porch, and grasped both her hands.

"What have you done to yourself?" he cried. "Do you have to wear such awful black black? It changes you entirely."

"It isn't that that changes me, Craig. I've done my hair differently, it's what they call up, and I have to be in the fashion, you know. Are they holding an inquest?"

"No. Come along in."

"Are there policemen and all that?"

"Not where we are. But there are some in the house. Never mind that. How sweet you look. I think I like your hair that way, though it changes you. "Yvette, can you take it? Being questioned and all that?"

"Why, yes, of course. Though I don't know anything to tell them. I didn't kill Harley."

"Of course not. But the Medical Examiner is a keen one. I mean, he'll ask you all sorts of questions, trying to trip you up, you know. But whatever you do, don't hesitate and stammer, or try to think. Just speak up quick and bright. Tell the exact truth."

"You don't mean they suspect me! Of killing my fiance! Nonsense! I mean it's nonsense for you to talk as you do. I don't believe I do want to go in there."

"You'll have to. Come on, put up a brave front."

"I think you're out of your head! Come on, then, take me in."

They went in the living room, where the inquiry was being held. Cornelia greeted her, and told her she must take her place with the family, by reason of her betrothal to Harley. She introduced Stone and Sutton, and then took the girl to sit beside her.

"I want to tell you," Yvette said. "Will you all call me Avis, please? You see, I am deeply interested in that strange science called Numerology. And I had word from them this morning that I must use the name Avis instead of Yvette. I can't explain it all now, and I'm sorry to have interrupted you."

"That's all right, Miss Verne," Sutton said.

* * *

But with all the willingness in the world, she could give Sutton little information. She told of meeting Craig at a party in New York, and accepting his invitation for a week-end house party. She told of coming to Silver Hill, and said that she and Harley Madison felt attracted to one another from the very first. That their affection grew rapidly, and when he told her that it was love at first sight with him, she confessed that it was with her, too, and they became engaged. It was announced the night before, and then in the morning she learned that Mr. Madison was dead. She had an important engagement in the city, with her producer, and she had to go in to see about it. It was all right now, and she could stay at Silver Hill as long as she was needed for inquiry or assistance of any sort, and then she would go away.

Fleming Stone remembered having seen her at the cocktail party. Here, Stone asked her where she had put the Madison pearls, for safety, last night.

"Why, I put them in the jewel case, the one that stands on the small table by the window."

"They are not there," Cornelia said.

"Then some one has taken them," Avis said, with spirit. "I meant to tell you, as I left, Miss Cornelia, that they were there and for you to get them and put them away. I know nothing further about them."

She tried to speak calmly, but her voice trembled. She felt already accused of theft, and added to the tragedy of Harley's death, it seemed too much to bear.

She rose and went quickly upstairs to her own room.

Avis, as she preferred to be called, sat by her window and looked out across the lawns, to the woods and the hills beyond.

* * *

A tap at her door, and she opened it to admit Cornelia.

"I want a little talk with you," Miss Madison said, taking the chair Avis offered. "And I wish you wouldn't wear that all black dress. It isn't becoming to you at all, and it is so doleful looking."

"I'll change it, certainly."

"What's all this about your name? Is it a new cult you're talking about?"

"Not a cult, just a fad. And I don't think it's numerology exactly, but some word like that. If your name is out of harmony with your soul theme, you ought to change it. They, the society, tell you what name to use."

"For what result?"

"Oh, for your general betterment and happier living. I'll send for their book for you, if you want it."

"Yes, do. I like new fads. Now, about the pearls. You can't have left them here in your room; since they are not here now. You must have taken them with you, and lost them or—left them in New York."

"Do you mean I have stolen them?"

Avis did not raise her voice, but resentment and rising wrath were expressed in her face.

"I shall not think so, if you give the necklace to me at once. It is not in the jewel case. Where is it?"

"I do not know. You lent me the necklace to wear last evening. It was a kindly thought, and I should have given it back to you before I slept. But I forgot to do so, and when I took it off, here in my room, I thought I would take it to you then. But I disliked to disturb you, so I left it till morning. This morning I overslept a little, and had only time to get off to New York for my appointment."

"What was your appointment?"

Avis raised her brows a little.

"To meet my manager, who wanted to tell me of a new picture he has in mind to produce."

"And you ran off giving no thought to the Madison pearls! I'm sorry that I have to feel a slight doubt—but the servants here are absolutely above suspicion. I hate to think ill of you, but ——"

Cornelia broke down and dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief.

"Don't do that!" cried Avis; "why, your eyes are all red and inflamed. Here let me help you."

* * *

She ran to her bathroom, and came back with some healing lotion and some cotton pads. She made the application and was so gentle and sympathetic, that Cornelia forgot her anger and received the ministrations gratefully.

"Now, Miss Cornelia," Avis said, "let me tell you once for all, that I have not stolen your pearls, that I have not the slightest idea where they are, but that I shall be glad to help you find them, and if we can't do that, why not ask Fleming Stone to do so? Surely a detective of his standing could accomplish that. Let's go and see him about it."

"No, I'll call him to us here." Cornelia rang a bell, and gave orders that Mr. Stone come up to Miss Verne's rooms when at leisure.

Soon the detective was with them.

"I am asking your help, Mr. Stone," Avis said, "for I fear I am under suspicion of a theft, of which I am entirely innocent."

"You are referring to the Madison pearls?" Stone asked.

"Yes; this morning, when I went to New York, I left them in that jewel case over there, and I return to find them missing and myself under suspicion of stealing them."

"Oo, now, now, Avis, I didn't say that," and Cornelia looked embarrassed.

"Then what did you say?"

"I said you might have mislaid them. You might have thought you put them there, when really, you put them in some other box or drawer."

* * *

Fleming Stone put his hand in his pocket and brought out a handful of white, softly brilliant pearls.

"Could these be the ones?" he said, smiling.

"Oh, yes!" Cornelia held out her hands for them. "Where did you find them?"

"You ought to have known. Where would you expect them to be, if not in their rightful place? Where were they often, not in your possession, but with your full consent, in another's?"

"I don't know what you mean," Cornelia said, looking really puzzled.

"Well, Miss Madison, I found the Madison necklace hanging around the neck of your cook, Mrs. Quinn, as she was working over the fire in your kitchen!"

"Now, how did you ever think of that!" Cornelia exclaimed.

"I didn't. One of the detectives from the Homicide Bureau—the house is full of them,—came to me and said the cook was wearing magnificent pearls under her dress. I went to investigate and found the Quinn person, a foreigner of some sort. She couldn't understand me at first, but when I saw the pearls, only partly concealed, she beamed with smiles, took them right off and handed them over."

"Yes, she talks very little English. Avis, dear, I am sorry if I was rude to you, but you must forgive me. I am under a great stress."

"Yes, I know you are, Miss Cornelia, but I don't quite understand. Did Mrs. Quinn take the pearls from here?"

"I suppose so," Cornelia said, carelessly. "She picks them up anywhere."

"And wears them?"

"Oh, yes; I want her to."

Stone was blankly amazed.

"Why do you want her to wear your jewels, Miss Madison?" Stone asked.

"Oh, I thought you knew that. Why, you see, pearls lose their luster and go dull and lifeless, unless they are much of the time in a very warm place. So, Mrs. Quinn wears my pearls under her dress a good deal of the time—enough to keep them in proper condition. She is always in the kitchen, and often standing over the stove, and the pearls respond to the heat, and keep their beautiful sheen. It is understoon she is to take them any morning after I have worn them the night before."

"And you forgot that the cook might have them?" Avis asked.

"Yes, I did," and Cornelia looked apologetic.

"Lock up the pearls, Miss Madison," Stone advised, "and then take me if you will, to your brother's room. That holds a problem that must be solved."

"Very well; will you come, Avis?" Avis was a name Yvette assumed.

"Yes."

Downstairs, at Silver Hill, the great hall ran straight through the main building, from front to back of the hall, and branched back, with many rooms on either side. A broad staircase went up at the back of the hall, and branched both ways on a spacious landing. Upstairs, the hall ran the other way, across the wide house. Harley's room was at the east end of the long row of front rooms, and Cornelia's at the extreme west end. Craig's room was next to his uncle's and Tom Sheldon's next to Cornelia's. The other front rooms were guest rooms, including the suite always given to Anita, when she came for her visits.

Across the hall, the rooms looked out on pleasant scenery, with the Ivy Arbor, Rose Pergolas and the various summer houses or shelters, and a fountain. Miss Verne's rooms were on this north side.

As they crossed the hall, Craig came out of his own rooms, and joined them. They entered Harley's bedroom.

Book of the Week

"IMPERIAL TWILIGHT," by Bertita Harding; (Bobbs-Merrill: $3.50).

BERTITA HARDING, historian of the Hapsburgs, has got down to Zita and Karl, and the pretender Otto. This is bringing the Hapsburgs into our midst, and laying them on our doorstep.

Anybody who can read knows that the book ends in the present, yet most of the time it has the flavor of a period out of the distant past. So far into legend has royalty receded.

Zita was, of course, an Italian, a princess of Parma. Karl was the Archduke of Austria who came into line for the throne of the Hapsburg empire through the death of Rudolf at Mayerling, and the fact that Rudolf's chosen successor, Franz Ferdinand, contracted a morganatic marriage.

Karl also was the emperor who was so badly advised as to arrange his coronation in Hungary — although it is quite possible that the circumstance, so fateful at the time, may have had less to do with the tragic result than it was supposed. Bigger events were rising. They banged around Europe just ahead of disaster, and reached Castle Steenockerzeel with hardly enough to cover their skins. Hope after hope faded in Austria, and the prospect of an alliance with Savoy and aid from Italy was killed by Mussolini.

* * *

Hitler and the anschluss ruined Otto's hope in Austria. The hard-comeby royal stipend from the Vienna parliament was then cut off.

And yet Zita lives, and Otto lives. Otto's numerous brothers insure the Hapsburg line. So probably hope lives also, though food for tea is a bit short—By J. S.

And Karl and Zita were also pitiful exiles. Unwell, and with a succession of sincere if misguided efforts to save his empire behind him, Karl signed his famous manifesto relinquishing his power only temporarily, what was left of it. Then he went into exile in Switzerland, and later still, pursued by a vindictive fate, to Madeira. There he died.

Then Zita. There has been no stranger career in modern times than hers. Born a princess and made an empress, Zita was reduced at Madeira to patching her too-numerous children's pants.

The children used to cry because when Crown Prince Otto's suits reached the baby they were so patched and worn as to be ridiculous. Karl had died partly because of heartless neglect. Even food was scarce, and servants not to be had. Yet Zita remained a princess and an empress, and never stopped her scheming for Otto.

The hard-luck empress and her brood were rescued by her Spanish relatives—and Spain blew up.

GALION—Ruth Thew of Iberia underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis Tuesday night at the Good Samaritan hospital. Ross Cook of Cherry street underwent a major operation at the hospital Wednesday morning.

SUBMITS $151 CLAIM TO CITY

Agent for King Estate Says Storm Water Damaged Building.

City council had before it today a claim for $151.62, submitted by R. H. King, agent for the estate of J. J. King, for damages to the King building resulting from storm water.

In a letter to council, King said that as the result of a broken curb on the east side of North Walnut street at Park avenue, storm water ran under the sidewalk and pushed out the supporting wall of the building.

He enclosed an itemized statement totaling $151.62 from a contractor he said he employed to repair the damage. King claimed he called city officials attention to the opening in the curb more than a year ago.

Election of Officers Highlights Legion's Last Session

DETROITER IN LINE FOR POST OF COMMANDER

Program Calls for Strictest Neutrality, Expansion of Armed Forces.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Election of a new national commander and other officers took the spotlight at the 1939 American Legion national convention today in its closing session.

Because of the tension created by the European war and important resolutions passed by the Legion regarding American neutrality the meeting was generally considered the most momentous in the 21-year history of the war veterans' organization.

Raymond J. Kelly, Detroit corporation counsel, was conceded to be a heavy favorite to succeed Stephen F. Chadwick of Seattle as national commander, although several candidates were in the field.

Upon the shoulders of the new commander will fall the burden of carrying out the mandates of the Chicago convention demanding, among other things, that:

Congress remain continuously in session to maintain that neutrality.

The armed forces of the nation be expanded immediately to maximum peace time strength; and that it be prepared to equip and maintain a million soldiers within a year.

As the Illinois delegation, second largest in the convention, voted unanimously to support Kelly in the election—following similar action by many other groups—one of the original seven candidates for national commander withdrew. He was Raymond Fields of Guthrie, Okla.

The other candidates were: Milo Warner, Toledo, O.; Lynn Stambaugh, Bismarck, N. D.; Edward Schieberling, Albany, N. Y.; Jack Crowley, Rutland, Vt., and Roane Waring, Memphis, Tenn. All are lawyers and all, as did Kelly and Fields, saw active service in France in 1917-18.

A message of greeting from President Roosevelt was given the final session by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, who said that the president "has a sincere interest in the progress made by the American Legion and in the welfare of our million members."

Jeff Davis Denies He's Lost Throne Of Hobo Kingdom

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Jeff Davis—his diamond-studded gold crown and scepter tie pin freshly polished—denied today he had been dethroned as "King of Hoboes."

"What's this noise about some jungle buzzard saying I'm dethroned?" Davis asked and waved a sheaf of newspaper clippings telling of the election of Dr. (of hobology) J. Leon Lazarowitz as hobo president at Duluth, Minn., yesterday.

The 57-year-old "king" declared "Lazarowitz throws that fit pretty often—this is the fourth spasm so far this year. Let me say I was on the road when that guy wore didies."

He asserted he had been elected "king for life" at the 27th annual hobo convention here in 1935 and the hoboes couldn't go democratic now and choose a president. He added:

"I was elected emperor of the International League of Hoboes of the World in London in 1938, so I guess Scissorbill Lazarowitz and his 72 ghost stooges will have to rave on, for King Emperor Jeff Davis still reigns."

Up and Down THE STREET

On display in the exhibit case at the Public library is a collection of wooden models of American locomotives from the earliest to the present streamliner. There is a scale model of the Baltimore and Ohio "York," the engine that won the company's $4,000 prize offered for the locomotive that could pull a load at 15 miles an hour in 1831. There also is a model of the "DeWitt Clinton," and of the "Commodore Vanderbilt," the streamline "horse" of the New York Central's crack train. The models were assembled by Miss Myra Lorimer, children's librarian, who purchased the pattern and pieces of wood and assembled them herself.

Although he admits that he never bowled more than once or twice in his life, L. E. Osborne, manager of manufacturing and engineering at Westinghouse, seems to understand what the game is all about. To launch the 1939-40 Westinghouse league bowling season at the Meder alleys last night, Osborne served as the official "first ball thrower" and showed even the stars a thing or two by knocking all of the sticks from the alley for a "strike."

Persons driving down North Walnut street this morning glanced with awe at a barricade placed near Temple court by water department workmen who were making repairs on one of the city lines. The reason was a red pennant bearing the letters T.O.T.E. It looked like a college football pennant, but passersby didn't know what the initials stood for, and the water department employes couldn't throw any light on the subject. They didn't even know where the pennant came from, but they liked it because it was red and a good danger signal. They assured all questioners, however, that they weren't "working their way through college."

WAR FAILS TO DAMPEN COCKNEY HUMOR---'ITLER BUTT OF JOKES

War is a pretty grim thing but the average Englishman is depending a great deal on his sense of humor to help get him through it.

So much dependance is being placed on humor in the present situation that one London paper, the Daily Express, is devoting a full column each day to humorous incidents as related by one of its reporters.

Clippings of this column have been received here by Betsy Cave, 24 Blymyer avenue, a junior at Senior high school, from Doris Cundy of Bisley, Woking Surrey, England, with whom she has been corresponding.

A few excerpts from the reporter's column follow:

"When the cockney starts wriggling his way through the international situation, you can be sure that he will get a few of the characters and countries a little mixed. In just that way yesterday's Downing-street crowd cheered Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith and cried, "Good old Anthony."—Sir Reginald and Anthony Eden wear the same hats and Eden, like Sir Reginald has a moustache."

* * *

"They brought one character out of the shadow. Two members of London's natural working classes were standing at the back of the crowd. One said: 'Wonder what the Kaiser thinks of it?' 'Ow, he's all right. 'Itler's jealous of him. He's on a war pension'."

* * *

"The Downing-street crowds, who have wooden legs for standing hours outside No. 10, had only one bit of movement during the early afternoon. A messenger came out with a red despatch box over his shoulder. The crowd began to push over the kerb. A policeman shouted: 'Hold on. He's only collecting the laundry.'

* * *

"Fleet street, naturally, had a few light touches. Some one phoned the Daily Express newsroom to say a secret German plane had just arrived at Croydon with one passenger. The man was fat and bald. 'Is it a big plane?' the newsroom asked. It was a small one. 'Then it can't be Goering. There wouldn't be room for his medals.'

* * *

"The newspaper sellers on the corner of Fleet street have been doing a terrific trade. They shout against each other with the stop press news. One was shouting as I passed: 'Latest. Latest. 'Itler just sent for a couple of aspirins . . . Official.'

* * *

"Some of the boys are having a good time. A bus going down Piccadilly was full of nurses in uniform. The conductor put his arm round one of them, and announced to the rest of the company: 'Look wot ol' 'Itler's done for me'."

STATE POINTS TO NEW LAW ON GRADE PROJECTS

Says 85 Per Cent of Damages for Crossing Elimination Must Be Paid by City.

A proposed $600,000 grade separation project for Mansfield on West Fourth street road near the city limits appeared "hopelessly lost" today. Mayor Claude M. Hunter stid after being notified by the state department of highways that the city's share of the cost was to be increased $7,000.

The highway department said recently enacted legislation now set the city's share of the cost of property damages at 85 per cent instead of 50 per cent as had been the terms under which council agreed to participate in the proposal.

Hunter said he would turn the communication over to council but that he "doubted very much" if it would be given any consideration.

First Set At $10,000.

Council early this month agreed to participate in the project, which has been tentatively set up in the state's 1941 grade separation program when it approvel an estimated share of $18,000.

The city would now be required to pay an additional 35 per cent which would hike its total share to approximately $25,000.

W. S. Hindman, chief engineer of bridges and railroad crossings for the state wrote that the city and county's acceptance of the terms of the proposal would have to be determined by Oct. 10 in order that the project could be included in the 1941 improvement program.

The county commissioners had been asked by the state to contribute $125,000, an amount which was alter reduced to $60,000 towards the project outside the city.

The request was turned down on the basis that the county had no money. They did however, later agree to contribute $20,000.

The proposal calls for the construction of an overpass at the B. O. railroad at the city limits and an underpass at the Erie railroad a mile further west.

DELAYED AGAIN

Start of City-WPA Water Job Now Set for Monday.

The city's 1939 water development program called for the construction of nearly two miles of new mains at the expenditure of $40,634, which was to have been started today by the WPA, was delayed for the third time.

Approximately 60 men, transferred from the county road project, reported at the county barn on North Main street this morning and were told that the job would not start until Monday. No explanation was given.

Trenching is slated to begin on Woodland road Monday, the first of five streets on which the improvements are to be made.

The project approved by city council and WPA officials four months ago is designed to employ 150 men for a three month period.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Ham Fish Fails to Rank As a Great Authority On What Is Truth or Falsity

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—With special interest I listened the other night to that part of an oration by Representative Ham Fish which dealt with propaganda and false report, because the reference brought to mind an interview with Mr. Fish about two years ago wherein he himself revealed, in aggravated form, that very carelessness regarding the source and truth of information against which he now lectured his fellow citizens.

At that time our statesman, representing the deep plush district which includes the homes of President Roosevelt and his mother, was about to return to one of the Hudson river towns for a political jollification and had prepared a speech giving his distinguished neighbors the rough side of his tongue.

His offices are adorned with souvenirs of his feats in sport and war, for he was a Walter Camp All-American at Harvard in 1910 and captain of an infantry company in several battles in France.

Being now 51, he is less athletic than he was, but mentally and spiritually he gives an impression of not having aged by so much as an hour since he left Harvard or, for that matter, since he entered.

* * *

On this day in Washington, Mr. Fish tossed across the draft of his address to his constituents and sat back obviously anticipating irresponsible chuckles. He had wrought some pretties, and, as Harold Ickes will allow, the effect of a speech comes not so much from the thought content as from the casual whammies placed at the end of the paragraphs. These are not easily done but are the result of much stall-walking, lasting sometimes far into the night, and, in most cases, are tried out on the little woman or the secretary.

I am not a good guinea pig for such experiments, having a rather high boiling point in the matter of oratorical humor, and I am sure Mr. Fish was entirely unprepared for my startled interruption at the point where he accused the president's mother of receiving $35,000 from the government for the repairs and maintenance of her home, which Mr. Roosevelt was using for his summer White House.

* * *

I asked Mr. Fish where he got this information, assuming, of course, that he was sure of his facts, and he replied by flipping out of a nest of papers a fan letter from a constituent signed with a name which meant nothing to him. That was all he had to go on.

He didn't know the person, the person gave no authority or proof and Mr. Fish himself had made no effort to check, but was going to use as fact an item of gossip which, incidentally, later kicked around the country until Steve Early, in a story called "Below the Belt," recently took notice of it and spurned it with his foot.

* * *

Later in the same oration Mr. Fish on no better authority, was going to repeat another hot but scandalous rumor about Mr. Roosevelt, also without checking and with no qualms or qualifications whatever. This one, I believe, was the report that the president's own father, in his will, had provided that Franklin should have no hand in the management of the estate because he had no appreciation of the value of or meaning of money. I think that was it, but if not it was equally unpleasant and probably equally untrue, as this one proved to be when, after receiving the same report in a dozen or more letters from various cities, I checked the will, on file at Poughkeepsie.

Mr. Fish seemed surprised at my quibbles on these two points and said he could qualify them by saying "it is said" or "it is believed," apparently under the impression that that was the way newspapers acquired information and absolved themselves of libel.

* * *

As to whether he finally did use this material once it had been challenged I don't know, but I was impressed by his recklessness as compared to the ethics and care of newspapers, in preparing to use it to the point where a question of authenticity was raised.

I was similarly impressed recently by a speech delivered under cover of his congressional immunity by Senator Minton of Indiana, who once offered a bill for newspaper censorship in the interests, as he said, of truth.

In this address the senator flatly charged, but without a word of proof, that a dozen prominent Americans had corruptly bargained with a Republican commissioner of internal revenue to receive back millions in tax refunds in return for a few thousand in contributions to the Republican national committee.

If you will just read those dice I think you will observe that I have made my point.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Among miracles of longevity deserving of contemplation there's the seeming deathlessness of the family of movie detectives.

Year in and year out, these sleuthing gentry flourish on the screen, some of them surviving vehicles indifferent at best, and often a little less than mediocre.

The reason? It's in any lending library, where sure money-makers are the mystery and detective tales. It's in the earliest lure, and still the greatest, that motion pictures had to offer—the thrill of the chase. It's the same fatal fascination exercised by cowboy heroes larruping over the plains after the dirty foreman who copped the pap-uhs and the gal. The detecting feilows do in it the drawing room minus the horse and generally they use their heads instead of a six-gun, but it's the same old chase.

Philo Vance, the hardy fellow, has just come back in the person of James Stephenson, this English actor's first starring role in Hollywood. Philo started on the screen looking like William Powell, later changed his disguise to resemble Warren Williams, Basil Rathbone or Edmund Lowe. Stephenson is being "different" in "Philo Vance Comes Back." Philo hitherto has been casual in his meanderings after crime; Stephenson's Philo, as a member of the U. S. Secret Service, is much more active.

Powell and Myrna Loy are in the midst of "Another Thin Man," as Nick Charles and Wife. There has been no change to date in this "Thin Man" teaming, probably could be none without offending a large following. (Incidentally, Edward Ellis could have a chuckle about this "Thin Man" business. Ellis was the original "Thin Man," disposed of in the first picture of the series. The tag has stuck, however, to Powell, who is as puzzled about it as anybody.)

Sherlock Holmes, perennial off-and-on screen hero, is back and seemingly set for a series. (Rathbone and Nigel Bruce teamed in "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and now in "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes.")

Charlie Chan's existence looked uncertain for a while when Warner Oland died, but Sidney Toler stepped successfully into the spot. Mr. Moto, poor fellow, ran smack into international politics and has been dropped—not, however, because he was a failure as a detective.

Temporarily abandoned because in "Bulldog Drummond's Bride" he won the girl—a procedure fatal to most detectives barring Nick Charles — Drummond (through nine films played by John Howard) is always subject to revival on the screen.

Nancy Drew, Detective (Bonita Granville), has had her activities curtailed somewhat but is by no means gone. Because the Warners are apparently serious about fighting double-bills, Nancy has been cropped to four-reel, supporting featurette length. Torchy Blane (once Glenda Farrell but now Jane Wyman) is no longer Torchy, but Torchy's spirit lives on in "Lady Detective."
